The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the study of the history of the English language. It is argued that the study of the history of the English language is not only a matter of historical interest, but also a matter of practical importance. The study of the history of the English language can help us to understand the development of the English language and to see how the English language has changed over time. This can be useful in many ways, such as in the study of literature, in the study of the history of the English language, and in the study of the English language in general.

Foreword

SINCE the first "L'AGENDA" was published, in 1888, Bucknell has risen to the present high place she occupies among the Universities of the East. The intention of the present L'AGENDA Board has been to see from every viewpoint the activities of student life at Bucknell. We have attempted to avoid over-emphasis of one phase of college life at the expense of another, to make it an ideally representative volume. It is our wish that each successive "L'AGENDA" will be better than this, the "L'AGENDA" of the Class of Nineteen-Sixteen

L' Agenda

THE source of the word "L'AGENDA" in its use as a name for the University Annual is enshrouded in mystery. An authority has said that the word meant "things to be done," but we would rather he had said it meant "things done." May we express our interpretation of the meaning of the word as applied to our Annual?

The word "L'AGENDA" should signify, to Bucknellians, that magic memory book which, when opened, recalls to the mind the faces, actions, and mannerisms of the companions of college days. By its magic the memories of things behind the footlights, the eccentricities and customs, the joys and sorrows, also the drudgeries and pleasures, of student life are recalled.

This is the object of the 1916 L'AGENDA. If it helps to preserve the cherished and fond memories of the college year of 1914-15, its purpose will be accomplished.

This Book is Sincerely Dedicated

Dedication

The heights that thou, in service, hast attained
Of one score years and five unmarred, unstained!
Oh, just as, humbly, Rugby's Matthew Arnold came Unheralded, so thou, to us of little name;
Recorded stand thy deeds in Bucknell's Hall of Fame.
Professing no great virtues, yet upholding all,
Rightly choosing, thou didst heed the needy's call.
Ennobling character, as only a great heart can;
Spurning filthy lucre to enrich the mind of man;
In justice firm, in judgment clear, a champion of right,
Deep-rooted in conviction, not less open to the light;
Earnest, thoughtful, kindly, true, to duty consecrate;
Never halting—manhood first, in honors small or great;
Tribute! to thee, our President, this book we dedicate.

Thomas Alpheus Edwards, A. M.

Late Professor of Pedagogy and Dean of the Department for Women Bucknell University

1904-1914

Died December 29, 1914

"There is no death! What seems so is transition ;
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life elysian.
Whose portal we call death."

LAGENDA

Lines on the Death of Dean Edwards

Out of the infinite silence of Heaven's eternal Light
A Call to Rest was wafted on pinions clear and bright.
No heart could feel, no tongue could speak
That message of Rest and Love
But the angels who sent it thither
From the realms of light above.
It was the Call of Heaven, a Call for a spirit among men;
And it said: "Return, ye spirit, to the Realm of a Wider ken."

Into the infinite calmness of Earth's ephemeral Day
That Call to Rest was entered on zephyrs dark and grey.
One heart did feel, one soul did know
That message of Rest and Love
Which the Angel of Life bore hither
From the Prince of the Realm above.
The Call of Heaven was answered—answered by a Spirit among men;
And it said: "I will return thither, to the Realm of a Wider ken."

Into the infinite stillness of Heaven's eternal Morn
The soul of a man was wafted, on pinions lightly borne.
No heart can feel, no tongue can speak
Our burden of grief and pain,
But Angels of Light who guard us
Know and will sustain.
A soul has gone to Heaven—the reward of a life among men,
For he said: "Prepare, ye Spirits, for a Realm of a Wider ken."

Senior Class Poem

The battle done? No, just begun,
As we leave our College dear;
We now discern what we must learn
Beyond our sojourn here.

When first we came and placed our name
As Freshmen at the College,
We thot we knew at least a few
Of the rudiments of knowledge.

As Sophomores we found the stores
Of learning vast, unguessed;
And yet we thot we knew a lot:
Conceit our souls possessed.

Another year and came the fear
By Juniors never passed:
Can e'er we be, by toil set free
From ignorance so vast?

We fully know, as forth we go,
Tho many may surpass us,
With goal afar, at best we are
But Pilgrims to Parnassus.

We now can hear, distinct and clear,
The World beyond us hailing
Us to our place, in Life's swift race,
With courage never failing.

But ere we go, we would bestow
A last, a sad, farewell
On college days, on student ways,
On thee, our dear Bucknell.

The battle done? No, just begun;
We hear, anon, its roar;
We leave Bucknell, aware full well
The greater lies before.

History of the Class of 1915

HISTORY'S muse, herself, might quail before the task of setting forth, in a few words, the deeds of our noble class. Suffice it here to relate the most noteworthy, leaving actions to speak the rest more loudly than any words that might be written. The class of '15 has been one to smash precedents, make records, and set new goals. No other class has furnished as many wearers of the "B," no other class has a higher record in scholarship. Far-famed for the beauty of its fair members, renowned for its athletic powers, Nineteen Hundred and Fifteen has, in physical and mental achievements, a record unsurpassed.

In Freshman days, the class scrap was overwhelmingly won, when our warriors, unawed by Soph. threats, dragged every opponent across the line, and later, besides winning the Proc. Scrap, treated a dozen protesting second-year men to the famous, early-morning, Susquehanna Cold Dip.

Our Sophomore year was distinguished by our defeating the Freshman horde in the underclass contest. Never before nor since, in Bucknell's history has a Sophomore Class been victorious in this annual fray.

As Juniors we added the inter-class Basketball Championship to our long list of honors. By this stage of our career, however, athletic victories grew less important as the greater achievements of mind and intellect outshone the glory of mere physical powers. From this time on the dignity of upper-classmen was worthily upheld and a good example set for the youthful classes following.

Now that we are Seniors, we look back with pride upon our record. Many good things at Bucknell have been initiated and upheld by Nineteen Hundred Fifteen. But the time is almost at hand for us to go: for yet a few brief months we tread the Campus paths and College Halls, and then go forth to larger life and deeds that shall make every member proud to say: "Bucknell is my Alma Mater, '15 is my Class." The day soon comes when we must go, but glances back and forward show, we need not fear we shall do well and honor bring to OLD BUCKNELL.

Junior Class Poem

Yesterday we came, all eager, joyous, unafraid, unto Minerva's citadel,
So strange was all at first, so full of mystery;
We knew so little and we thought we knew so much.
With youth's bright eyes we bridged the gulf of years,
And heard the call of power, glory, fame,
But did not see the struggle, sorrow or the losing fight;
And we within our narrow ignorance thought wisdom lay in books alone.
And that was Yesterday.

And still another Yesterday,
With less of mystery, glamour, than the first,
But more of question and the practical;
Restless with surplus energy, we wonder how and why and where.
That, too, was Yesterday.

Today, Junior Year, Tomorrow's Yesterday,
Now smoothly winds the way,
For on our doubts and struggles bright the light has dawned,
And with our broadened viewpoint
We have found that Wisdom's infinite and not confined to books alone;
And from the tower window
Fair Visions full of purpose and of work worth while,
Come thronging, thronging, waiting to be born.
But we have not yet reached the goal:
The Yesterdays have gone, Tomorrow is to come,
And this is just Today.

Junior Class History

A LITTLE more than two years ago a sturdy shoot of a priceless tree was transplanted from the common soil of the world into the fertile, intellectual soil of Old Bucknell. So hardy was the shoot that despite the cruel winds of doubt, and the fierce blazing rays of criticism it took root and grew. During the first year of its existence it made great progress, promising soon to outgrow the other trees upon the same fertile soil in which it stood. The careful keepers of the orchard watched it grow, noting its sturdiness of character, and its ready absorption of the nourishing elements in the learned soil. So the year passed, and the sapling put forth leaves, the marks of life, and heralds of the fruit of perfected knowledge. In the shadow of these leaves, another shoot began its history, but its development though great, was dimmed by the shadow of a greater splendor than its own. Another year, and among the tender leaves of hopes appeared blossoms, bright glimpses of future fruitfulness, of mighty works, and of fame. Still do those blossoms adorn the tree, and despite the blight of over-estimated worth, and the frost of dark despair and doubt, this perfect tree bears such fruits as only the sap of noble purpose and honest perseverance can produce.

Such is the tale of the Class of 1916, the physical victories of the athletic field, the intellectual victories of class room, the moral victories of campus and dormitory. But promises in the early history of our class have burst into blossoms of greater promise, and now thus we stand, fellow students demanding of us fruits in the one remaining year, and the world demanding the more perfect fruit of post-college life.

SAMUEL GUY ALTER

PARNASSUS

Slippery Rock State Normal School; Class Baseball, 1, 2; Class Football, 2; Jurisprudence Course. "Sam," "Mister A."

Here is one of those quiet industrious fellows who is always to be found in his room no matter when you happen around. "Sam" is a great lover of "Pop" Perrine's English "Lit" and "Ephie's" "Money and Banking." To become a great lawyer and stand high in the legal profession is his one ambition. This we have no doubt he will be able to do, as he stands high above most of us now, rising heavenward somewhere between six and seven feet. Judging from his quiet, energetic and persevering ways, a great future in law is in store for "Sam."

ESKEL VALENTINE ANDERSON

"Where there is no 'Hope' there can be no endeavor." "Puss" certainly showed the wisdom of his fathers when he decided to desert the class of '15 and cast his lot with us. It seems as though he didn't use this wisdom though, when he decided to take an engineering course, and deprive the ministry of a man of ability. He displayed this ability in several open air sermons in front of the Post office during the Theta Delta Tau initiation.

We suggest that, in case he fails to shock the world with his knowledge of electricity, he start all over again, and take a ministerial course, and shake it by his oratory.

LAGENDA

LESTER JUDSON BARTLETT

LEWISBURG

Altoona High School; Forum; Sophomore Oratorical Contest; Junior Debate; Class Football, 2; Ministerial Society; Minstrels; Classical Course. "Bart."

The original of this picture is a tall, gray-eyed youth with a pre-determined air about him. "Tis an ill wind that blows nobody good" is a proverb which applies to "Bart's" dropping back a year and entering our class; for, had he not taken the leap in the dark, the class of '16 would not have gained a "stude" whose ability in "Rocky's" Latin was second only to his record as a fusser. This year "Bart" has busied himself by manfully bearing a father's burden together with his college work, and we feel that he will perform his duties in the ministerial field just as admirably.

RAY PAUL BIGLER

BENTLEYVILLE

Bentleyville High School; Demosthenean; Class Baseball, 1, 2; Class Football, 1; Civil Engineering Course. "Butch," "Prof."

We take this opportunity to introduce to you Ray, quiet, retiring, but a strong proof of the saying that "still water runs deep." Retiring? Yes, we first learned this in the Freshman year when at the sound of the Sophomore paddle in the stilly night, Ray was seen to retire, wisely enough, to a port of safety under an upperclassman's table. Ray has the capacity to get the best out of his subjects, and at the same time to enter fully into the college life, for when the right girl came along he did not hesitate to intrude upon the sacred precincts of the "Sem." We ask Ray's friends, Is he not becoming more "Hanson" every day?

WADE FRANCIS BLACKBURN
STAHLSTOWN

California State Normal School; Demosthenean; Class Football, 2; Prize Sophomore Oratorical Contest; Junior Debate; General Science Course. "Chief."

The history of this genial Junior goes back to a little two by four cradle in the vicinity of Stahlstown, where he decided that this old world was good enough to live in, and stayed.

"Chief" came into the ranks of this noble class at the beginning of the Sophomore year and we were glad to welcome him. This intellectual looking pedagogue has, however, a strong liking for old maid school teachers, they say, but you would not think it to look at him. Combining the many college diversions with hours of hard work, "Chief" is drinking the cream of college life.

WARREN FOSTER BROOKS

YORK

York County Academy; Dickinson College; Sigma Chi; Ministerial Association; Classical Course; Ministry. "Parson."

Had this jolly Junior come among us when we were Freshmen, we have no doubt that by this time he would be a greatly distinguished student of Bucknell, but unfortunately he spent his first two years at Dickinson College, where he heard of the great class of 1916 and became one of us last September.

The only time he becomes real serious is when his daily communication from York arrives an hour late. If he can win souls as he has won the admiration of those around him, the ministry and the world will be much better off for his having existed.

LAGENDA

SAMUEL MILTON BRYANT

LEWISTOWN

Lewistown High School; L'Agenda Board; Freshman Declamation Contest; Sophomore Oratorical Contest; Assistant Manager Orange and Blue, 2; Manager, 3; Class Football, 2; General Science Course. "Milt."

The subject of this sketch is one of those good natured fellows who find time for everything in college except girls and the vices. Milton is rarely seen in the company of the fair sex and this trait, together with his habit of "hanging around" the post office before breakfast and after supper, proves that there is a girl back home.

He is one of the few college men who do their part in every college activity from welcoming the freshmen for the Y. M. C. A. to editing a department on the Orange and Blue. "Milt's" ambition is to be an instructor and we feel safe in predicting a great future for him in this profession if his college career may be taken as an index to his future one.

DOROTHY ELIZABETH BUNNELL

UNION, N. J.

Union High School; Summit High School; Pi Beta Phi; C. E. A.; Student Executive Committee, 2, 3; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 2; General Science Course. "Dot."

"Dot" is a right-hand-out-and-how-do-you-do kind of a girl. Frank, friendly, and fun-loving, she is the right sort of person for all sorts of weather. When she is in the humor for having a good time she must have it and most always to the sorrow of her roommate or helpless neighbor in class. "Dot's" presence at Bucknell is explained by her ambition to do something great in biology. However, another "something" has happened to her since her arrival. Now it's a question whether she spends more time over her lab work or her correspondence. Dignity, too, sits not unkindly on this maiden's brow as can be plainly seen when she dons her cap and gown for "Student Exec" meeting.

BRUCE EDWARD BUTT

NEW MIDWAY, MD.

Walkersville High School; Electrical Engineering Society; First Assistant Editor L'Agenda; Varsity Track, 1, 2; Class Track, 1, 2; Captain Class Track, 1; Manager Class Baseball, 2; Class Banquet Toast, 2; Junior Smoker Committee; Electrical Engineering Course. "Cy," "Archie," "Buster."

Bruce came to us from the sunny state of Maryland and had not been here many days before some of his prominent traits were revealed to us. The principal one of these was his love of furniture moving and his ability to make himself at home wherever he found his furniture had been moved, notwithstanding the fact that it may have been the fire escape room. Bruce is also some track man and he is right in his element running the mile and two mile, in the meantime singing to himself "There's a Girl in the Heart of Maryland."

EDGAR CARLTON CAMPBELL

SHUNK

Bucknell Academy; Delta Theta Upsilon; Manager Class Baseball, 1; Class Banquet Committee, 2; Class Vice President, 2; Cap and Dagger; Bucknell Dramatic Trio; Literary Editor L'Agenda; Deutscher Verein; Latin Philosophical Course. "Ed," "Casey," "Cicero," "Aristotle," et cetera.

This product of the Sullivan county hills soon demonstrated his ability not only as a student, but also as an athlete and fusser. When war with Mexico seemed imminent "Ed" also showed his patriotism by joining the National Guards as an artilleryman and soon won the distinction of being able to hit a mountainside at a distance of half a mile. "Ed's" specialty is elocution and his ability to entertain has been demonstrated at many college functions. As a literary editor he has shown marked ability and the quality of the literary department of "L'Agenda" stands as a monument to his untiring efforts. We know that he will be successful in whatever he attempts.

LEGENDA

LESLIE HARLAND CAMPBELL

Bucknell Academy; Delta Theta Upsilon; Manager Class Basketball, 1; Class Baseball, 2; Sophomore Cotillion Committee; Junior Prom. Committee; Medical Society; Biology Course. "Les," "Sleepy."

If you are looking for a practical exponent of liberal education, here is your man. "Les" believes in taking a taste of them all. He started out in Chemical Engineering, shifted last year to General Science, and a little later expanded his area to include Biology. Last term he was vacillating between Forestry and Electrical Engineering. In desperation he is taking Calculus this term with a view to calculating his profession. So one of these days "Sleepy" is going to awake and then—look out! He will startle the world with the fact that he had the goods all the time and was only playing possum.

RUSSELL SAVIDGE CONRAD

SUNBURY

Sunbury High School; Sigma Chi; Civil Engineering Course. "Coonie."

"Men of few words are the best men."

If men were only paid for intentions, "Coonie" would be a multi-millionaire. A good thing about him though, is that he keeps them to himself. He is a man of actions rather than words. His profound silence, however, has won for him the admiration of the fellows and the faculty, and judging his future accomplishments by his present ability and application, we predict for him a very successful career.

L'AGENDA

JOHN JOSEPH CONWAY

AMSTERDAM, N. Y.

Stevens School; Stevens Institute of Technology; Phi Gamma Delta; Class Football, 2; Mechanical Engineering Society; Mechanical Engineering Course. "Connie."

Look! Look! What have we here? Another one that Prexy permitted to register during the confusion of registration day in the fall of 1913. However, since then we have become acquainted with "Connie" and the more we see of him the better we like him. You see, he blew in here from Stevens Institute but we have reason to believe he will be a loyal Bucknellian in the future. "Connie" loves to sit on the piano stool and to play by the hour. With the girls he is a comer, being duly initiated last spring term in the Chemical Laboratory. As a student he is superior, for the only time that his books rest is when he sleeps.

MAURICE BACON COOK

GREENWICH, N. J.

Bridgeton High School; Phi Kappa Psi; Chemical Society; L'Agenda Board; Assistant in Chemistry; Class Track, 1, 2; Captain Class Track, 2; Class Treasurer, 2; Junior Prom. Committee; Chemical Engineering Course. "Flitch."

"Flitch"—this is the name applied by the Jerseyites to that portion of the "porker" known as bacon—hence this sobriquet. Be not deceived though in thinking that the aforementioned nickname has any relation to the subject of this sketch other than the analogous meaning of the words Bacon and "Flitch," for Cook is a clean-cut Junior. Knowing the advantages of a broad education and not satisfied with only a Chemical Engineering course, Cook entered the "Sem" as an astronomy student and is now observing the characteristics of a "Starr" discovered by him.

L'AGENDA

WALTER SUPPLEE CROUSE

HONEY BROOK

Honeybrook Township High School; West Chester Normal; Forum; Chairman Freshman Banquet; Toast Sophomore Banquet; Bucknell Band; Class Baseball, 1, 2; L'Agenda Board; Junior Prom. Committee; Latin Philosophical Course; Teaching. "Father," "Pop."

This Chester county native is the possessor of a famous smile that won't come off—only some times when his beloved pipe is lost, strayed or stolen. From Psychology class we have it that this lad is permeated with "brightness." We don't doubt this fact in the least for, presumably, some of it has already oozed out into his otherwise ebony locks. No, we won't predict a successful career for you, "Father," for your experience already as Principal of "Beetown" High School is sufficient to show that failure has a cold berth in your train.

SAMUEL MARSHALL DAVENPORT

PLYMOUTH

Plymouth High School; Phi Gamma Delta; Toast Class Banquet, 1, 2; Class Basketball, 1; Captain Class Basketball, 2; Sophomore Cotillion Committee; Sophomore Oratorical Contest; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, 2, 3; Orange and Blue Board, 2, 3; Treasurer Medical Society, 2; President Medical Society, 3; Cap and Dagger, 2; Assistant Editor L'Agenda; Delegate to the International Student Volunteer Convention; Assistant in Biology; Assistant Track Manager; Biological Course. "Doc," "Davy."

Ah! Hold the book a little closer, dear reader. The face that so nobly graces this page is none other than Samuel Marshall Davenport, short of stature, but the fusser of fussers. To use the vernacular of slangy folks, "Doc" is "some guy." Ever since he came to this hall of fame he has been quite active, as is shown by the list of activities above. "Doc" with all this is, however, a good student, a lover of what is best in everything, an ardent opponent of what is not, and a general all-round booster.

LAGENDA

ROSCOE GRANGER DAVIS

WEST CHESTER

West Chester High School; Kappa Sigma; Assistant Baseball Manager; Varsity Track, 1, 2; Theta Delta Tau; Phi Delta Sigma; Civil Engineering. "Dye," "Zero."

Fortune certainly smiled on Roscoe, for she endowed him with an abundant supply of brain and a congenial disposition. With these two assets to work with, this son of West Chester came to Bucknell and at once made good. The truth of this statement is shown by his being elected Assistant Baseball Manager and his being awarded various class honors besides. It would be omitting something important to conclude this without mentioning the fact that Roscoe has made many and prolonged visits to the "Sem."

JOHN JONATHAN DE HAVEN

DUNCANNON

Duncannon High School; Sigma Chi; Class Football, 1; Class Baseball, 1, 2; Junior Smoker Committee; General Science Course. "De."

"When 'one' lady's in the case,
You know all other things give place."

When "De" arrived at Bucknell his principal pursuits were baseball and girls. Now they are baseball and a girl. His choice is unknown to the scribe but from the small magazines he receives from Philadelphia addressed "Jack De Haven" she must be an authoress.

"De" was the regular prey of the Sophomores until one night when he leaped on a cow and went galloping away in truly Western style. That scared them and they left him go unmolested from then on. "De" intends to become a teacher, and if he can impart knowledge with the same degree of success that he attains in "handing out" good fellowship there is still a hope for the world.

L'AGENDA

RUTH EMLYN EMBREY

MAHANOEY CITY

Oneonta High School (New York); Mahanoy City High School; Pi Beta Phi; Freshman Oratorical Contest; L'Agenda Board; Latin Philosophical Course.

To look at this fair, queenly Junior one would not think that she comes from the sooty coal regions of Schuylkill county. When animated, her really brilliant smile and lively conversational powers make her a most agreeable companion. She is always in for a good time, especially of a social nature, and invariably furnishes her share of the fun. Ever since her Freshman year Ruth has been more or less annoyed by numerous students (masculine gender) who found it interesting to take an uncataloged course in "Embrey-ology."

MARGARET WASHINGTON EVANS

PLYMOUTH

Plymouth High School; Deutscher Verein; Latin Philosophical Course. "Grasshopper."

Margaret, demure and sweet, proves the saying that "Valuable things come in small packages." Margaret is a faithful and conscientious student, but she knows too how to have a good time and to make others enjoy it with her. True to her Welsh descent Margaret gives promise of becoming a great singer, but we fear her future will take another course from what we "See-back" in the last few months.

LAGENDA

RUSSELL WILLIAM EVERETT
SLATINGTON

Slatington High School; Mechanical Engineering Society; Class Football, 2; "Class Detective," 3; Mechanical Engineering Course. "Rus," "Scheidy," "Smiley."

Characterized by his aversion to a stiff collar, this left-handed right hand man to Professor Burpee refused to serve on the Prom. Committee for the aforementioned reason. From being associated in his youth with the Welsh "goats" of Slatington he developed a propensity for butting which cropped out in his Freshman year when one night in his haste he tried with his head to push over the stone steps of Oak Hall. "Rus" has had considerable experience with the genus auto and can persuade motion in a refractory one, from a Ford to a Packard. Although unknown to us as a "fusser" we understand why, when on Sunday afternoons and—we see him writing letters to "a certain someone full of charm" in Slatington.

JAMES BURKE FOLEY
RENOVO

Renovo High School; Kappa Sigma; Class Banquet Speaker, 1; Class Football Manager, 2; Class Vice President, 3; Jurisprudence Course. "Jimmy."

"Jimmy" claims to be our sole representative of a little hamlet up north called Renovo. He is improving very rapidly in many particulars, especially in weight. With the addition of "Jimmy," West College added to her wardrobe a new supply of fancy vests, for he has all kinds, even striped and spotted ones. To be in keeping with the cheerful vest, "Jimmy" always wears a broad smile. In fact, since the citizen of Renovo is following law, we expect him to make a notable reputation because of his wit, popularity, and good nature.

CYRUS BROWN FOLLMER

MILTON

Milton High School; Kappa Sigma; Theta Delta Tau; Phi Delta Sigma; Class Banquet Speaker, 1; Chairman Junior Prom. Committee; Medical Society; Biological Course. "Cy."

"Cy" came to Bucknell in order to prepare himself to enter Medical School and finally become one of the country's leading physicians. But he has done much more than prepare himself for a further study of Medicine. Because of his class spirit, good nature, and extraordinary dancing ability, he has become very popular among the fellows. We feel sure that "Cy" will have an extensive practice when once he has realized his ambition, because of his thoroughness in work and his ability to make friends.

CARRIE DUNBAR FORESMAN

LEWISBURG

Lewisburg High School; Frill and Frown; General Science Course.

Here's to the girl who lives in town,
And travels daily up and down.
She is very quiet and very neat
And her friends all say she's very sweet.

Yes, that's what we say about Carrie even if she did become dreadfully excited about her L'Agenda write-up. She was afraid we were going to say something nice about her and as everyone knows, Carrie can't and won't take a compliment. Carrie's "striking characteristic" is her original ideas. Not long ago she had one which is good enough to print. This idea was that the test of a man's true worth as a husband was whether he could put up a stovepipe without losing his temper. Here's hoping, Carrie, that you find one of that kind.

MARY ELLA FREED

WILLIAMSPORT

Williamsport High School; Student Executive Committee, 3; L'Agenda Board; Latin Philosophical Course. "Sweetness and Light."

Unassumingly and unheralded Ella came into our midst. But it was not long before we found out the truth of the old adage, "Still water runs deep." Ella has had many honors, but they all fade into insignificance when compared with the laurels gained "in the ring," for in the "Junior boxing contest" Ella made her opponent "take the count." These qualities combined with a good disposition insured for her an overwhelming majority in the election of the student executive council.

ARTHUR WILLIAM FULTON

HUBLERSBURG

Hublersburg High School; Muncy Normal; Forum; Sophomore Cotillion Committee; Banquet Toast, 1; Class Football, 1, 2; Latin Philosophical Course. "Foxy," "Artie."

Having found the bounds of Hublersburg, which "Artie" says is a real village in Centre county, too narrow for his ambition, this personification of good nature and ready wit migrated to our College on the Hill. He hoped to get a more extended outlook on things in general and "Rockey's" Latin in particular. Being a pedagog by profession, "Foxy" could not resist the opportunity of spending a part of this year in the educational uplift of his native community. "Foxy" is the possessor of an acquaintanceship with the fair sex which, for extensiveness, is both the marvel and ambition of every "fusser" on the Hill.

L'AGENDA

HAROLD WENDELL GIFFIN

NEWTON, N. J.

Curtis High School; Class Track, 1, 2; Class Football, 1; Class Baseball; Civil Engineering Course; Kappa Sigma. "Giff."

Since Harold has been at Bucknell, he has proved in two ways especially, that he possesses a great amount of brain. In the first, he entered Bucknell in the Fall of 1909 but dropped out of school for four years in order to graduate with the class of his choice. In the next place, Harold has shown in Strength of Materials and in Railroad Surveying that he is a coming Goethals. But be it understood this prodigy has displaced his ability in various other ways besides the two mentioned and in fact has established the name of being an all around man.

CLARENCE EDWARD GLASS

READING

Ephrata High School; Sigma Chi; L'Agenda Board; Class Banquet Toast, 1; Class President, 2; Minstrels, 1; Toastmaster Sophomore Banquet; Varsity Track, 1, 2; Class Football, 1, 2; Captain, 2; Varsity Scrubs, 1, 2, 3; Class Track, 1, 2; Manager, 1; Jurisprudence Course. "Leonore."

In science, math, and Latin
There are many rules to learn
Yet for these and many others
Glass doesn't give a darn.
His favorite is one of the "Ruhls"
Nearest round his heart entwined;
In this one he has more interest
Than in all the rules combined
Of Ethics and Psychology
Stored up in "Prexy's" mind.

"Leonore" is a genial good fellow and a friend at all times. We predict that a happy, successful future awaits him.

HELEN MARGARET GROFF

WASHINGTON, N. J.

Washington High School; Pi Beta Phi; C. E. A.; Y. W. C. A.; Annual Student Member; General Science Course.

Out of the wilds of New Jersey Helen found her way to us in September, 1912. From the time of her arrival she has ever been in demand as attested by her large circle of friends. The one matter of conjecture concerning Helen is the way in which she is next going to employ her leisure hours. Last year we noted that she found pleasure in resting upon "Davenports," but this year it is very evident that leaning upon "Hedges" is a source of pleasure to her. Whatever Helen's future may be, we know that she will have plenty of friends and will be to them the same bright, charming girl she is to us.

EDWIN CHARLES HAGEMAN

NEWARK, N. J.

Newark High School; Phi Gamma Delta; Bucknell Band; Mandolin Club; Sophomore Banquet Committee; Class Track Team, 1, 2; Member Student Branch A. I. E. E.; L'Agenda Board; Electrical Engineering Course. "Ed," "Hagie."

"Hagie" is another product of Jersey. He is a modest youth with a very frank disposition and always enjoys a good time. Since his Freshman year he has held the position of drummer boy in the band and does his work creditably. With the ladies "Hagie" takes a back seat, because he thinks he cannot devote more time to them than it takes to write four letters a week to Brooklyn. In his classes he is a shark and his genial disposition and optimism are qualities that make us know him better and will help him in the future.

LAGENDA

HILDRED HOWARD HANN

NORWICH, N. Y.

Norwich High School; Phi Gamma Delta; Assistant Manager Varsity Football; Civil Engineering Course. "The Tonsorial Artist."

"Hann," the "College Barber," is distinguished as being one of the members of our class who is never idle. Intuition makes us salute him as a quiet, hard worker, for it is not everyone who can work his way through college and keep up in his studies at the same time. Hildred does both and with much success, for he is one of the best Engineering students in his class. Concerning the fair sex, Hildred never talks of but one, whose picture hangs over his desk. The thought of this one, however, goes constantly with him to and from the Post office, two and three times a week.

MARIE ELIZABETH HARER

BLOSSBURG

Blossburg High School; Frill and Frown; General Science Course. "Kid."

Undecided as to what college to enter, Marie looked about at the college people in her town and found that Bucknell claimed the elect. Accordingly she packed her trunk and boxes and left the gay, white way of Blossburg far behind her and came to live with us. We are not exactly certain what particular line of work Marie intends to pursue after graduation, but from present indications we rather believe she will be a-Ward-ed a position in the Post Office Department.

CLARENCE OLIVER HARTMAN

PORT CLINTON

Pottsville High School; Lehigh University; Lambda Chi Alpha; Class Banquet Toast, 2; Sophomore Cotillion Committee; Mechanical Engineering Course. "Chick." "Heidelberg."

After spending one year at Lehigh "Chick" came to the conclusion that the possibilities of broadening all his faculties at Lehigh were too small. Therefore, he decided to join us in our Sophomore year here at co-educational Bucknell where "fusology" and "matrimony" are the two major elective courses.

"Chick" is of Dutch-German descent and if you don't believe it just try to persuade him that the Germans are not "in it" in the present war. He will show you on the other hand the error of your ways if you don't "throw the Germans over the sea some powder and guns right away once." Nevertheless, we feel sure that he will make his mark in the engineering world.

LEWIS STOUT HEINEN

MILTON

Milton High School; Phi Gamma Delta; Medical Society; Mandolin Club; Biological Course. "Louie."

"Louie" is a prominent Miltonite and has the distinction of being the tallest as well as the most quiet man of our class. "Louie" has the remarkable quality of keeping his mouth shut and attending strictly to his own business. It is through his silence that he creates the impression that he knows a lot if he only wished to talk. He carries it so far that when anyone, even a Prof., asks him a question, he stares him in the face and says—not a word. He has the ability to make and keep friends and we expect to hear from him later in the scientific world.

LAGENDA

HAROLD BURROWS HENDERSON

MONTGOMERY

Bucknell Academy; Phi Kappa Psi; Medical Society; Biological Course; Medicine. "Corp." "Hendy."

Another man who said "I will study and prepare myself and some day my chance will come." When "Hendy" said this he was thinking of the day when 1916 would enter Bucknell, for after entering and being carried along for a year or two by several previous classes he joined us in our Sophomore year. "Hendy" aspires to be a great doctor and insists, despite the objections of the faculty, that he will some day be the peer of Van Wasserman, Cute, Carrol, Abderhalden, Widal and other great doctors. We wish him well in his chosen profession.

SARA IRENE HILBISH

NORTHUMBERLAND

Northumberland High School; Frill and Frown. "Dutch."

"Dis iss our little Deutscher from Northumberland already." Sara's most striking characteristic is a "smile that won't come off." This and the quality of her work disprove the oft quoted, "Whistling girls and crowing hens never come to very good ends." Next to her whistling, Sara's specialty is secrets and a question much discussed by her companions, "Who is the latest mysterious man?" We doubt very much Sara's intention of becoming a teacher because of the fact that she has begun housekeeping on a small scale and her repeated declaration, "I just love housekeeping."

HELEN IRENE HORTON

WEST BROWNSVILLE

Centerville High School; Latin Philosophical Course.

In friendship, in school or in teaching,
Helen ever comes up to the mark.
She's quiet and kindly and pleasant
And always enjoys a good spark.

Efficiency must be her motto,
For she constantly makes it her aim.
In whate'er she attempts she's successful;—
Her fun and her studies the same.

THOMAS LEWIS JAMES

SHARON

Buhl Club Night School, Sharon; Youngstown, Ohio, Y. M. C. A. Night School; Bucknell Academy; Editor-in-Chief L'Agenda; Vice President Mechanical Engineering Society, 3; Assistant in Shopwork; President Glee Club, 2; Class Track, 1; Mechanical Engineering Course; Sigma Alpha Epsilon. "Tom," "Jesse."

Tom drifted into Bucknell about four years ago when he entered the Prep. Here he grew so fast that they found it was necessary to change him to harder ground so sent him up the Hill to work with us. He is a good man wherever you choose to put him. In his Freshman year he showed marked ability as a pole vaulter when he (almost) cleared two feet three inches.

Tom is the father of our Glee Club, even though he does look rather young to have that honor. Although he is bound to make a good engineer the literary world certainly lost a gifted writer when he left that work to become one.

L'AGENDA

JOHN FREDERICK JEFFERY

WESLEYVILLE

Harbor Creek High School; L'Agenda Board; Mechanical Engineering Society; Oratorio Society, 1; Minstrels, 1; Glee Club, 2, 3; Class Track, 1, 2; Class Football, 2; Class Basketball, 3; Mechanical Engineering Course. "Jeff."

In addition to oil wells Wesleyville has also another famous product, "Jeff." Although "Jeff" says he comes "through the oil fields" to get here we have not noticed any oil on him; he even smokes a pipe, which confirms our observation. He visited the Sem. quite frequently in his Freshman year but since then he seems to have a deeper interest in someone back home. Although usually quiet and unassuming he is the proud possessor of a deep bass voice which can soar to the height of Pike's Peak or descend to the pitch he uses in the class room. "Jeff" is a good student and we expect him to "make good."

HELEN JENKINS

FRANKLIN

Franklin High School; Delta Delta Delta; L'Agenda Board; General Science Course. "Jenks."

Now "Jenks" is what you would call an accomplished young lady. Whether she is desecrating the schoolroom piano with ragtime, or bringing down the house and (incidentally) Miss "Schill's" criticisms in Frill and Frown, or whether she is making us all sit up and take notice by "talking-back" to Prexy in Ethics, she proves beyond question her right to be called accomplished. From the merry twinkle in her eyes and her ever ready smile you can guess that "Jenks" is a pleasant person to have around. It can not be here recorded what may become of "Jenks" after she leaves us, for we understand that she has not yet decided whether she will be a poetess or a follower of Mary Pickford.

LAGENDA

MARY LANGLEY JONES

WEST PITTSTON

West Pittston High School; Bucknell Orchestra;
General Science Course. "Lady."

Where'er she goes she leaves her trails
Of broken hearts and poor boys' wails.

Tailors' models as to dress,
Her suitors haunt the "Sem," unless

The laundry has their one silk shirt,
And then in "jersey" do they flirt.

Yes, Mary is one of our class—heart—breakers; but perhaps this is because her course leads her so often to the laboratory, where so many acquaintances around Bucknell are started. But don't get the impression that all Mary's time is taken up with society, for she is a hard worker, evidenced by the fact that she is taking a "heavy" Mathematics Course.

CECELIA KITLOWSKI

NANTICOKE

Nanticoke High School; Pi Beta Phi; C. E. A.; Deutscher Verein; Nanticoke Club; Theta Alpha Beta; Classical Course. "Kit."

That this fair-haired and gentle creature really came from the hard coal region of Nanticoke, we have always found difficult to believe. We have heard that she takes the laurels from the ministerials and other serious folks that study Greek. At any rate we know that her gray matter is of a very substantial variety from the "A's" she gets in Riemer's "Dutch" and everything else. Cecelia has a very fascinating giggle and long ago she learned that modesty and shyness are of necessity very appealing qualities in a woman. If you want to see her blush just mention this mysterious trio of names to her—"Sidney G., Genie T., and Eddie P."—then presto! You will have produced the desired effect.

LAGENDA

MARY BELLE LEES

JUNIATA

Juniata High School; Delta Delta Delta; C. E. A.; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 3; Latin Philosophical Course. "M. B."

"Marybelle" is a unique example of the rare combination of genius and common sense in the same individual. As for College activities, "Marybelle" is always at hand, and always is an efficient and indispensable worker. On the more frivolous side of life, there's nothing that goes on in the social whirl of Bucknell that "M. B." is not "in for." Unlike so many of our fickle Junior girls she is constant, ever bound hand and foot in the little god's meshes, and says there's nothing like it.

BURTON FREDERICK LEWIS

WILKES-BARRE

Wilkes-Barre High School; Phi Gamma Delta; Class Football, 2; Electrical Engineering Course. "Burt."

"Burt" is another one of our class that entered Bucknell with advanced standing. From a second glance at his portrait you may be able to get a fair idea of another one of Wilkes-Barre's products. "Burt" came here with high ideas about Electrical Engineering and from the very start he has been industriously studying the electric lines between Lewisburg and Milton. Some day "Burt" will probably meet his true affinity and then those lily white hands and that immaculate appearance will vanish. If he could only be persuaded to let the women alone—but maybe that isn't his fault.

CYRIL ELTON LEWIS

Plymouth High School; Mechanical Engineering Society; Mechanical Engineering Course. "Cy."

Yes, Cyril is Welsh and he is proud of the fact. He came to Bucknell as a Freshman with the rest of us and has kept in our company ever since. His pet subject of conversation is the manufacturing and testing of auto springs. "Cy" is also some pharmacist, having pushed the sodas across the fountain in a drug store during summer vacations. Those who for two years have known him cannot help predicting for him a brilliant future.

HELEN DERR LEWIS

WATSONTOWN

Watsonstown High School; Delta Delta Delta; Freshman Declamation Contest; Latin Philosophical Course.

Helen is one of those philanthropic souls who helps fill up the widely advertised "empty coffers" of the poor but honest Pennsylvania railroad, by commuting from Watsonstown.

She has various and ever changing ideas about what she wants to do to startle the world, sometimes even being so rash as to declare she wanted to be a missionary to Africa. But this year Helen has changed from foreign to home missions, and she has been putting forth some real and very commendable home missionary efforts in guiding and directing the youthful feet of the "little brothers" of her old Bucknell friends.

PAUL BRENTON LEWIS

LEWISBURG

Elizabeth High School; University of Virginia; Delta Theta Upsilon; Manager Bucknell Band; Electrical Engineering Society. "Pap," "Skin," "Bouillie."

Here it is! If "Skin" had but one eye, he would make a good needle. Once he was on a porch roof when he slipped, fell, and rolled over the edge. The witnesses of the accident expected to find him lifeless on the concrete pavement below. But, lo! they discovered him lying safe and sound in the eaves pipe. "Pap" says he always has to be careful how he runs down hill for fear of breaking off his legs. But, lungs! They are not at all spindling, as you observe when he gets after the bass horn. Here is where "Pap" exhibits exceptional ability.

JOSEPH EARL MALIN

FRAZER

West Chester Normal School; Lambda Chi Alpha; Cap and Dagger; Prize Freshman Declamation Contest; Sophomore Oratorical Contest; Class Football, 2; Class Basketball, 2, 3; Class Banquet Committee, 2; Varsity Tennis, 2; Captain Varsity Tennis, 3; Assistant Cheer Leader, 3; Junior Ex.; Junior Smoker Committee; Latin Philosophical Course. "Joe."

If you have ever shaken hands with the subject of this sketch you will certainly remember him, for "Joe" has the grip of the college. It is said that once upon a time a young lady had to seek the services of a physician after he had clasped her hand. But "Joe" is a worker from the word Go and his stick-to-it-iveness was well demonstrated in Surveying class last fall. He believes in a varied course so he has taken an occasional Domestic Science Lecture, as well as a generous sprinkling of Elocution. In fact "Joe" is an all round good fellow and we do not need to ask him to remember his friends of the class of 1916 when he becomes president.

L'AGENDA

RUTH SPRAGUE MATTERN
HUNTINGDON

Huntingdon High School; Wellesley College; Pi Beta Phi; Assistant Manager L'Agenda; General Science Course. "Bill."

After an honest endeavor to endure Wellesley in the beginning of her Sophomore year "Bill" returned to us once more, bent on having excitement and adventure. To help the cause along this year she joined a matrimonial agency, with the result of a deluge of love missives of all descriptions. As far as we know, no one of her many recent suitors has been eloquent enough to turn her affections from the object of them situated in the U. of P. Despite her unconventional nom de plume, "Bill" is an exceedingly dignified and striking young lady, popular in society, and it is also reported that occasionally she indulges in the innocent pastime of studying.

STERLING RAYMOND MENSCH
WILKES-BARRE

Wilkes-Barre High School; Member Student Branch A. I. E. E.; Sophomore Cotillion Committee; Class Football, 1, 2; Electrical Engineering Course. "Pop."

Here is the lightning change artist of East College. Many mornings has "Pop" been wandering in the misty land of dreams, only to be awakened by the cruel jangle of the 8:15 class bell. A jump, a kick, a jerk, a thrust and he is halfway down the stairs, headed for class. But think not, fair reader, that this is his only accomplishment. "Pop" is active in every branch of college life. He has even gone so far as to study occasionally. The only sorrow of his life since coming to Bucknell is the fact that he has given a toast at each of our class banquets and neither of the programs gives him credit for his oratory.

GEORGE FUNSTON MILLER

LEWISBURG

Bucknell Academy; Phi Kappa Psi; Medical Society; Varsity Baseball, 1, 2; Captain Varsity Baseball, 3; Class Basketball, 2; Biological Course. "Georgie."

George, or as he insists upon styling himself, "Charles Darwin, Jr.," is a manly-chested, good-natured, smiling fellow. He is above all else an eminent Biologist, and like his great peers along these lines, Aristotle, Darwin, and Spencer, he has some pet theories of his own. George is prouder of being a German than the Kaiser himself. He has the true military instinct deeply-rooted in him, as we all have observed by his regimental demeanor at the bat. Here's good luck to you, George; may you find the pot of gold at the rainbow's end.

DONALD RAYMOND MILLER

MIFFLINBURG

Mifflinburg High School; State College; Class Football, 2; Class Track, 2; General Science. "Tubby."

And when Miller had heard of the fame of 1916 he came to prove it by trial. And when he had seen all of 1916's wisdom, and the hopes she had built, and the athletes of her class, and the composure of her students, and the attendance of her officers, and their apparel, and her cupbearers, and her ascent by which she went up into the house of Bucknell there was no more love for State College in him. And he said to 1916, it was a true report that I heard in mine own land of thy acts and of thy wisdom; and behold the half was not told me; thy wisdom and prosperity exceedeth thy fame which I heard. Make me as one of you. And even as he wished so was it done to "Miller the Mifflinburgite."

L'AGENDA

MARGARET MORTON McFARLAND
NORTHUMBERLAND

Northumberland High School; General Science Course.

Margaret has always seemed very shy and quiet but we think she is improving since she has become a member of Doctor Perrine's Literature class. There, under his frequent admonition to "speak out clearly," she has proved herself to be quite eloquent. Margaret is a faithful and honest worker. She is sure to win out, for she is not afraid of obstacles. Because of her sunny disposition and ability to always see the funny side of things her friends find her a genial companion.

OLIVER HAYES McFARLAND

Staunton Military Academy; Phi Gamma Delta; Class Football, 2; Manager L'Agenda; Jurisprudence. "Mac."

The sight of this comely young man will cause flutterings in many hearts of the fair sex, but "Mac" is wise and has not as yet fallen a serious victim to their charms, though the sailor with his girl in every port hasn't anything on "Mac." He hails from Watsonstown and that may be the reason that the class at large does not know him very well. It's the class's loss, for "Mac" is a mighty fine companion. He entered as a Freshman and decided to return to his home in Watsonstown every evening during that year because—well, yes, the Sophs were looking for him once or twice. "Mac" intends to be a lawyer and if all his business is handled as well as he handled this book he ought to make good.

And it came to pass in our Freshman days that there came up out of the land of the South to sojourn in the land of the Bucknellites, a certain maiden named Lucile. And lo! it came about that the maiden won her way into the hearts of the Bucknellites and her abode which was in a place called Annex, became the joyful gathering place of many Semites, from far and near, from buildings both "Old" and "New." And sometimes it came to pass in the "quiet hours," that the hand of the enemy sounded upon the door in the midst of the revelings within, whereupon the maidens all had respect (?) unto the summons and rose up and departed sadly unto their own abodes.

JAMES EDWARD NANCARROW

JERSEY SHORE

Jersey Shore High School; Kappa Sigma; Theta Delta Tau; Class Football, 1, 2; Varsity Scrubs, 1; Class Track, 2; Class Basketball, 2; Class Banquet Committee, 2; General Science Course. "Nan."

"Nan," as he is familiarly called, is one of the representatives of a town called Jersey Shore, situated somewhere in the wilds of Lycoming county. His intention upon entering Bucknell was to do everything in his power to help his class. And he has done this grandly, for besides entering into the class games he has always played an important part in the class "scraps." The one thing about him that has impressed a number of his friends is that he is not able to Leve-good enough alone.

LAGENDA

GEORGE HENRY NEFF, JR.

SUNBURY

Sunbury High School; Sigma Chi; Theta Delta Tau; Class Banquet Committee; General Science Course; Business. "Tubby."

"Tubby" is what one would call an idealist. Little does he care for the pursuits of ordinary beings. Far be it from him to waste time on such empty subjects as science, history, and language. His hobbies are of a deeper nature. His domain is in the realms of Anthropology, Sociology, Logic, etc. He is Dr. Martin's most esteemed friend and cohort. His sense of humor is by no means at variance with his philosophical mind. His keen wit would make even "Joe Miller" envious. His ambition is to go into business, but with a mind like his, and such a sense of humor, the stage would be a better place for him.

VERNIE GRACE NOLL

LEWISBURG

Lewisburg High School; Bucknell Institute; Deutscher Verein; Latin Philosophical Course. "Nollie."

Oh, here is our classmate, the Miss Vernie Noll,
And we all must confess that she's way off
from dull,
In fact she's quite brilliant in Herr Riemer's
Dutch,
And with very good reason he says she is such.

Each morning in chapel she's found in her place,
With a joke on her lips and a smile on her face.
In Miss Schillinger's classes she's learned to declaim,
And doubtless will win for us honor and fame.

HIRAM PERCIVAL NORMAN

SUNBURY

Sunbury High School; Kappa Sigma; Electrical Engineering Society; Bucknell Band. "Hank," "Bunny."

"Hank" attributes his success to the fact that he is always able to comprehend weighty matters. The physique of "Hank" gives us evidence that he also understands how to add weight to things in general. But besides being a deep thinker, he has other accomplishments, for it is rumored that he intends to displace "Bunny" with the Vitagraph Company. If he makes the hit in the movies that he has made at Bucknell, John Bunny had better look for a new job.

MILTON JARRETT NORMAN

SUNBURY

Sunbury High School; Kappa Sigma; Electrical Engineering Society. "Bud."

Every year Sunbury sends a number of good students to Bucknell. The year 1912 was no exception in this respect for at that time "Bud" saw fit to take up Electrical Engineering at this Institution. Since that time he has made an enviable reputation for himself, both in class room and among the fellows. "Bud" has all the good qualities which are required for success and it is not presuming too much to say that a very prosperous future awaits him.

"Ossie," "The Little Minister."

Eric's career at Bucknell has, indeed, been a varied one, but in spite of his versatility, he is successful in whatever he attempts to do. The story of how "Ossie" hid in his wardrobe from the Sophomores is well known about school. In his Sophomore year "Ossie" not only became a "terrible Sophomore," but something far worse, a fusser. We fear "Ossie" is now flirting with the marriage license bureau, if the way in which he anxiously awaits that semi-weekly letter from Bridgeton, N. J., might be taken as an indication of such.

ELSIE MARTHA PARK

MONTANDON

Lewisburg High School; Freshman Declamation Prize; Latin Philosophical Course.

After trying a class before ours, Martha decided to wait and cast her lot with the class of Sixteen. When we first knew her we thought her very quiet. Lately, however, we have discovered that her characteristic is not so much quietness as it is knowing how to do the right thing at the right time. Martha has poetic ability of no mean kind. Were it not for the rumor that she will some day become a minister's wife, we would predict for her a brilliant literary career.

L'AGENDA

OLIVE MILLICENT PARK

Montandon High School; Freshman Declamation Prize; Latin Philosophical Course.

From what we know of Olive in classes, we of the "Sem" feel sure we are missing much by not becoming better acquainted with her. She is the kind of girl who makes a jolly companion and a good friend. Besides having oratorical ability which she demonstrated in winning the Freshman Declamation contest, Olive is also something of a musician. We hear she has not yet decided which of these lines she will follow after leaving school, but we rather think there is something which will help her decide. Olive occasionally entertains at the Montandon Park and the girls who have been her guests tell us of the good times they have enjoyed there.

AMY LLEWELLYN PATTERSON

EATONTOWN, N. J.

Red Bank High School; Delta Delta Delta; Assistant Editor L'Agenda; Class Poetess, 1; Student Exec., 2; General Science Course.

Sparkling eyes, curly hair,
Cheeks a'dimple, sweet and fair,
That's Amy.

Loyal, trusty, the life of every crowd, original and very determined, that's Amy, too. In her Freshman days, Amy was a star classic student, fully versed in all the lore of the ancient philosophers including Plato. We wonder whether it was not from this source she derived her firm belief in Platonic friendships. From the looks of things at present, however, we fear she is not living up to her beliefs. Amy's greatest ambition is to be dignified, but, sad to say, she is rarely successful, notwithstanding desperate efforts.

CLARENCE WILLIAM PETERS

LIGONIER

Juniata Academy; Grove City College; Demosthenean; Class Football, 1, 2; Class President, 1; Chairman Banquet Committee, 2; Junior Debate; Jurisprudence. "Pete."

"Pete," whose classic profile is exhibited in the gallery of fame, hails, they say, from Ligonier, near where, no one can say. But though he lives near somewhere, he is not content to be near any goal, for he never gives up till he is over the line with both feet. Our unfortunate president in the Freshman year, "Pete," knows full well the meaning of the saying, "spare the rod and spoil the child." But in the Sophomore year, ??? Why did the "procs" call him the "Sanctimonious Satan from Ligonier?"

We have never seen the horns. Although he will leave us this year, he is still a true representative of the class of 1916.

DAYTON LEO RANCK

Bucknell Academy; Lambda Chi Alpha; Cap and Dagger; Jurisprudence Course; "Date."

Dayton L. Ranck, the most cheerful business man of the class of 1916, with a smile that will not rub off, laughs and the world laughs with him. No one seems to know what factors are at work to cause so much cheerfulness on his part. Some think that he is fussing at the "Sem" with Miss Ella Cution. Aside from his fussing, however, "Date" is thinking seriously of entering the business world once again. We expect that after he graduates, he will come into possession of Rockefeller's shoes and all that the world will hear and know will be Ranck, Ranck and more Ranck.

NORMAN JACOB REHMAN

NEWARK, N. J.

Newark Technical School; Phi Gamma Delta; L'Agenda Board; Member Student Branch A. I. E. E.; Manager Y. M. C. A. Handbook; Secretary Athletic Association; Class Football, 1; Electrical Engineering Course. "Dutch."

"Cut that out" is one of "Dutch's" favorite expressions. With these "harsh words" he distinguished himself as a Sophomore. "Dutch" is a Jerseyite and a good student. If he happens to get less than an "A" in any subject, gloom pervades his countenance for some time. Last year he used to make frequent journeys between Milton and Lewisburg, but now a Seminary attraction holds him here and we are able to see more of him. Electricity with all its allurements has captivated him and when he talks it is in volts, amperes, double expansion turbines, etc. As an engineer he ought to make good, if steady and persistent efforts can gain him success.

ANNA LOIS REYNOLDS

CLINTONDALE, N. Y.

Highland High School; Frill and Frown; L'Agenda Board; Class Secretary, 2; Class Poetess, 3; Latin Philosophical Course. "Lois."

This quaint little maiden is our class poetess. Yes, Lois does write poetry which soars into the heavens, although she sometimes descends to "terra firma." In her Freshman year, her room was usually the rendezvous of the "clan" because of the numerous "boxes" that found their way there. But now since Lois has become a Junior and better known, her real value has been found to be in her true, kind, and cheerful friendship. Lois is always ready to smile and look on the bright side of every cloud. Would that there were more like her.

ARCHIBALD McCORMICK RIPPEL

MILTON

Milton High School; Delta Theta Upsilon; President Fussers' Club; Chemical Society; Chemical Engineering Course. "Rip," "Cupe."

If there ever was a steady, consistent fusser, the class of '16 has one in "Rip." With the advent of the '17 class came an inspiration to "Rip" to negotiate immediately with Cupid. As president of the Fussers' Club he holds undisputed right to a special section of the Sem. parlor. "Rip" is very fond of society and formal functions; so much so that on one memorable night when the Sophs called to see him he unconsciously attired himself in full dress. "Rip" is a chemist but does not need a spectroscope to discover a red line ("Redelin") in the spectrum of the Sem.

KENNETH COLQUHOUN RITCHIE

RAHWAY, N. J.

Rahway High School; Forum; Class Banquet Committee, 2; Class Football, 1, 2; Class Baseball, 1, 2; Class Track, 2; Civil Engineering Course. "Kenneth," "Fusser."

Here we have a model of determination and gentleness, whether it be in study or football. Although Kenneth is a lightweight for the gridiron sport, he never fails to make up in nerve what he lacks in avoirdupois. He is the originator of the "Seventy-seven-excuse me" signal. Although a diligent engineering student, Kenneth has shown his versatility in two extra courses: Advanced Composition and wrestling. We have a lot of respect and admiration for this quiet, inoffensive youth from the state of cranberries, trusts and mosquitoes.

MARY FLORENCE ROLLINS

ALTOONA

Altoona High School; Delta Delta Delta; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 2. "Fripsie."

After spending two years away from Bucknell, somewhere near the region of Altoona, the lure of her Alma Mater became too strong and Florence decided to come back and graduate with "a real class." "Fripsie" certainly is a most welcome addition, for, aside from her musical and artistic abilities, combined with a faculty for making and keeping friends, she is a hard worker for all sorts of college activities and class affairs.

CLYDE EDWARD RUNK

HARRISBURG

Harrisburg Technical High School; Phi Kappa Psi; Electrical Engineering Society; Class Banquet Committee, 1; Electrical Engineering. "Rabbit."

"Rabbit"—and why—well, he likes the "Bunny Hug" for one thing, and you'll have to ask what else the name might mean. Perhaps there's nothing in a name, which his parents also thought, for he was unnamed until his fourth birthday. He was just plain "Buddy" before that, and now he's "Rabbit," and sometime hence we expect him to receive a real title from the hearts of his fellowmen. Who knows but that he shall wear Edison's crown! Well, good luck, "Rabbit," and may it read like this—Franklin, Edison and Runk.

JEROME CRANMER SALSURY

MONROETON

Monroeton High School; Class Football, 2; Jurisprudence Course. "Romeo."

"Romeo," the boy from Monroeton, Sir! Yes, that's the place where Jerome received his first impulse to become a great lawyer and therefore decided to come to Bucknell. Leaving the protection of home friends he arrived here at the tender age of sixteen. The Sophomores, not knowing whether he was yet able to swim, decided to teach him how, so the first lesson was given on one "balmy" night in late November when he, along with several others, was unwillingly made acquainted with the icy water of the creek. Jerome is now very much interested in Blackstone and bids fair to become nothing short of Blackstone's double.

HOMER MORRISON SANDERS

VICKSBURG

Mifflinburg High School; Forum; Bucknell Band; Class Football, 1, 2; Class Track, 2; Member Student Branch A. I. E. E.; Electrical Engineering Course; Sophomore Oratorical Contest. "Sandy."

"Sandy" comes from a place up the track called Vicksburg. In his early Freshman days, he used to come from there every day, but finally decided that the atmosphere of West Wing wouldn't cloud his brain or corrupt his morals; so now he bunks on the Hill. During his Freshman year "Sandy's" athletic frame was kept in condition by faithful service on "By" Dickson's scrubs and by special attention from the Sophs. "Every good man has a right to change his mind" is "Sandy's" explanation for deserting the classical course to take up Engineering; this may also account for his recent activities in social circles.

EDNA LENORE SAYENGA

PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh Academy; Bucknell Institute; Student Volunteer; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet; General Science Course.

Pray, don't waste too much sympathy on this young lady! In reality she is possessed of a keen sense of humor that ordinarily causes her face to wear a bright and cheerful expression, but—well, we all know what an ordeal it is to have one's picture taken. Edna just loves to talk; she can't even keep still in church, but as she always has something worth saying the rest of us never object. Her word is as reliable as the law of the Medes and the Persians. Always she is busy at that which she means to make her life-work, namely, giving a helping hand to others. Recently her many friends have been mystified over her remarkable aptitude in blushing. We deem the mystery one worthy of solution.

WILLIAM LEE SHOWERS

WEST MILTON

Milton High School; Toast Class Banquet, 1; Jurisprudence Course; Law. "Benny."

"Benny" is one of the busy men of our class. Besides being general superintendent of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad he is a very important member of the West Milton band, for which he wields the drumstick with the skill of an acrobat. However, with all his work he is ever ready to do what he can for others and never loses the broad smile on his face. We are told that he is preparing himself for the legal profession but we predict a great future for him as an orator, having already distinguished himself as such in "Bromley's" oratory.

"Luke" left his home bound for Susquehanna via Williamsport and the Reading. When passing around the Bucknell Campus on the train his fancy was struck by the passing view of the place and he forthwith decided that it was the proper school for him. So, alighting from the train at Winfield, he hiked back to Bucknell. It was then, perhaps, that he became aware of his ability in track. Susquehanna lost and Bucknell gained, for "Luke" is a good student and a pleasing companion. The clever manner in which he executes the "Yiddish dance" and impersonates the Israelite won for him the nick-name "Abie."

JAMES RUSSELL SNYDER

BENTLEYVILLE

Bentleyville High School; Demosthenean; Glee Club; Freshman Declamation Contest; Sophomore Oratorical Contest; Class Baseball, 1, 2, Captain, 2; General Science Course. "Shorty."

Yes, we must admit that this subject is small, but when he lifts the curtain from that ponderous baseball arm of his, we are inclined to believe that Homer did not exaggerate when he ascribed to "Shorty" the power of throwing a baseball as far as a MAN could shoot an arrow. Perhaps the writer is a trifle wrong in translating that passage of Homer, but after all, what's in a name? Snyder sleeps in bed, out of bed, in fact anywhere he can lay that nicely combed head without mussing his hair. We predict for "Shorty" a long, successful career in teaching the advance work of the three R's.

Now in the days when 1916 was young there was in the tribe of 1915 a giant named Sturgis of mighty renown and valour. And it was seemly in those days inasmuch as they were greater in numbers by nearly a score, for the tribe of 1915 to make nightly raids upon the less numerous tribe of 1916. And this giant Sturgis did strive mightily in these raids, beating the men of the tribe of 1916 hip and thigh. But the gods of 1916 seeing her sore perplexity did bring Sturgis to a consciousness of his wrongdoing. And he was sore distressed and did realize the true worth of the tribe of 1916, the comeliness of her maidens and the ability of her students. And he prayed admittance to the class of 1916 and was accepted even as was "Miller the Mifflinburgite" before him.

One day this little maid packed her trunk, bade farewell to the "Smoky City" and its environments, and hied her way eastward to the "Classic Halls of Learning" and her fate. And find her fate she did, for lo! our Grace suddenly develops a most alarming and desperate case which is fervently returned, and henceforth it bids fair to be "Grace and Sally" to the end of the chapter. Grace is always happy and optimistic and her sweet pleasant ways and a certain faculty she has of being excessively funny without knowing it, have won her many friends.

Although last year he was a rabid fusser, this year Switzer spends the time he used for fussing in writing letters to Her. In addition to keeping 1916 in front in athletics he finds time to be a consistently good student and to know the choruses of all the late songs (sentimental preferred). His sharp and accurate vision enabled him to detect a deflection of one-millionth of an inch in Strength class. Probably this is the reason he can always win by a large score at pinochle. As a litterateur suffice it to say that he has written a comprehensive essay entitled "A History of the Bell Telephone." We wish him well.

This stern looking individual joined us at the beginning of our Sophomore year and it was not long before the other members of Professor Bartol's Calculus class began to sit up and take notice that he was "some student." As "Dick" is a married man and must be home to "wifey" every night before curfew we do not know him so well as we would like to, but we certainly admire him for the ambition and "grit" he has displayed by striving to obtain an education under such handicaps confronting him. We feel sure that he will bring honor and glory to 1916 and the "college on the hill."

This earnest young man came to Bucknell to pursue his studies in a region uninhabited by those annoying little pests that persist in using their proboscis to gather up a few samples of Jerseyites. "Tilt" thrived so well that, if it were not for this neutral poise, he would have been carried away long ago by some of the fair ones who always inquired, "Who is that tall, good-looking man?" The fellows on the Hill know him only as an able student and sympathetic friend who understands how to enjoy a frolic as well as how to handle some of the serious problems of life.

When Louise first came to us she was a demure little maid in short dresses and curls, but as time passed on and duties and studies accumulated, the skirts suddenly became very long, the ribbon was taken off and the curls piled up on top of her head. It is really astonishing how one small person can have the time and strength and ability for so many and such varied interests. Besides carrying four stiff subjects a term, and by right of her high authority as Head Proctor, being constantly assailed by eager Freshmen with the question, "May I go downtown to-night?" she still finds time for her violin and a good bit of fun sandwiched in between.

So here's to you, "Trip." You shall not go away, unknown, unhonored, without this little word from one who knows.

Sure, "Chuck" was born in America; don't ask such foolish questions. He is known, ladies and gentlemen, as the original exponent of "less bang and more biff" and 10 to 5 currency. Distinguished in his Freshman year for his ability in spelling his name backward for the Sophomores, he "came back" strong as a Sophomore and had a high batting average on the hazing committee. It is said his picture is to be in every deck of cards next year because he is such a joker. He is noted for his ability to make friends, especially with the ladies. Although his father once captured him after a two-mile chase, his work on the Varsity Track Team causes us to doubt this report.

We present our one true Dutchman, a descendant of the famous Patroon families along the Hudson. This nifty little Freshman with his beautiful complexion entered our midst and was classed as a woman hater until his Junior year and—well, just gaze over the Fussers' page! "Van" has gained a worthy reputation for himself and is distinguished for blowing tin horns, expounding Webster's dictionary and the technicalities of the law. We wish to state that with his thorough knowledge of the law, and his everlasting cheerful disposition, and proclivity for making friends, he will undoubtedly prove successful.

Stop, look and listen! Every evening at 5:30 in the region of East Wing, "Stuyvie's" boop! boop! or his lusty chung! chung! sets the sound waves reverberating. His greatest ambition is to become a teacher. With his pent up noise as

West Newton High School; Delta Delta Delta; Deutscher Verein; General Science Course. "Gem."

"Full many a gem of purest ray serene," sings Gray in his Elegy, but we fear the learned poet erred slightly in his words, for worthy as his motive may have been, it is clearly evident that Bucknell has but one Gem. Down a Weddle-paved pathway she came to us and very glad we are that she came. In addition to her other accomplishments, "Gem" is mistress of the chafing-dish and with her presiding, many the Sunday evening party that has feasted royally on the most delicious of cocoa and the kind of fudge that "just melts in your mouth."

Rumor hath it that Ruth and her "intended" have "fit," but we will not venture to state this as fact. From all appearances she is as jolly and carefree as ever. Already we have broken Bromley's rule that important things should come at the beginning. The "important" thing is that Ruth is the prima donna of our class. If you have ever heard her sing, you'll know this without further assurance. 'Tis also said that Ruth doesn't like to study; this may be fact or fiction, but we do know that she believes in the good old rule of "never do to-day what may be put off till to-morrow." Her room is always a center for merry spirits for where Ruth is, there, you may be sure, some sort of fun is brewing.

Bucknell Academy; Sigma Chi; Mandolin Club, 2, 3; Class Banquet Committee, 2; Electrical Engineering Society; Electrical Engineering Course. "Peachey."

"I can suck melancholy out of music."

"Peachey" is the man with the artistic temperament. He can usually be seen wandering about the college "dorms" with a mandolin under his arm. And when he takes that "stringed box" out of its case and starts to pick on it, he certainly can "make it talk." He is also quite an artist on the violin. When he passes you he always just says "Howd'y do" and walks on. But that one short "howdy" carries with it a world of meaning and has won a host of friends for him.

There's a reason for Washington and Jefferson regarding Bucknell with a jealous eye. Football victories are lent momentary triumphs; Bucknell "puts one over" on W. & J. every time one demure little Blanche turns her back on our rival college at Washington, Pa., and travels toward Bucknell. Blanche has a most attractive personality, and has gained such fame in dramatics as to receive tempting offers from Frohman, Belasco, Klaw & Erlanger, and others too numerous to mention.

"Yep," this is the redoubtable Wright. He's not such a bad sort of a fellow when you once know him. From a timid and trembling Freshman he became a terrible and fear-inspiring Soph. It has been noised about college that since last spring, Wright has not been the same; all due to a little progressive party. The strange part of it all is that "Charlie" has about decided to settle in Parkersburg, W. Va. Wright is a bit hard to understand on account of a few ingrown feelings in his make-up, but for a good steadfast friend there is none better.

Sophomore Class Poem

It scarcely seems a year now since,
With strange and halting feet,
We entered here as Freshmen green,
Prepared our fates to meet.

E'en tho our marks have been straight "A's"
Or mixed with many "E's,"
Still we've left one year behind;
We're nearer our degrees.

We've left behind our Freshmen caps,
Our fresh and boisterous ways,
And with a vengeance—Oh, how sweet!
We've had a chance to haze.

No more on elders shall we wait,
Now all such things are past;
The strife of Freshman life is o'er,
We're Sophomores at last.

We've many pleasant memories;
Our class is full of pep.
We have established round our school
A mighty envied rep.

In social and athletic stunts
Old seventeen doth lead;
Our members daily spread our fame
By word, by act, by deed.

Sophomore Class History

ONE of our Professors says: "History is the unfolding experiences of peoples and of their actions." According to this definition the class of 1917 in its brief sojourn on the campus has done much to add to the chronicles of Bucknellians.

In the very beginning of our life at Bucknell we vowed to stand together and well have we kept our vow. During our Freshman year we triumphantly proved ourselves a worthy class, being victorious in all four class events. In the class rush this year although greatly outnumbered we put up the pluckiest fight ever witnessed on the old athletic field.

Nineteen Seventeen blazes a new trial for Sophs. Instead of taking undue delight in slaughtering the innocents, we have earnestly endeavored to guide their tender minds aright and by giving them some amusement and relaxation from their studies, prevent their becoming grinds and acquiring exaggerated opinions of themselves.

Our intellectual and social life has not been neglected. In the class room we have shown intellectuality and in social circles affability.

This year brings to a close the Sophs.' joys of Class Rushes, Proc Scraps and the Painting of the bridge. But this does not discourage us because we realize that although these old experiences have come to an end there will be new ones which will take their place in the realm to which we are so anxiously looking forward—the realm of upperclassmen.

EAST COLLEGE

MOUNT MONTOUR FROM EAST COLLEGE

J. A. HUNT 1863

FRESHMAN CLASS

LACENDA

Freshman Class Poem

O, we're noble and illustrious,
And just and famous too,
But Sophomores say we're green as grass
In everything we do.

The Seniors say we're very crude
And have a lot to learn
Ere we shall grow as wise as they
And our degree shall earn.

But aided by the Junior class
We hope to prove to you,
Altho we're green, we'll loyal be
To the Orange and the Blue.

Freshman Class History

MR. EDITOR:

When you did to us extend an invitation to write a history of we ourselves, we do indeed respond willingly most. We were all Seniors—last year, but we did put away our childish things and robe upon ourselves the garments of a college Freshman and thereby we do claim ourselves to be menly men and womenly women. We do have "some bunch" as it was clearly proven to thine own eyes by the terrible slaughter we did hand to our opponents in the Class Scrap.

But, Pity Goodness! we do not wish to rest upon our laurels. Far from it!—"No, Anthony, we do not." We do for ourselves adopt a motto "Everlastingly at it." Indeed to goodness! David with him had it when he did stick one on Goliath's jaw and dropped him down for the count. Alexander the Great had it in his hip pocket when he swam across the Hellespont. Michael Angelo kept it before his eyes when he was carving the image of John Bunny.

We continually this motto carry. That's why we did put so many men both on the football and basketball teams, and they do play like a bunch of three-year-old colts.

Therefore, place thou thine confidence in we and believest thou upon us, for the Honor and Glory of Dear Old Bucknell lies within our hearts.

The Y. M. C. A.

ENTHUSIASM and helpfulness blending together for the good cheer, encouragement, and edification of the fellows on the Hill has been the chord sustained by the Y. M. C. A. throughout the year. After warning all the new men of the cordial welcome awaiting them, the committee, by working out the most enjoyable program ever presented at the regular Y. M. C. A. Reception, struck the keynote of service at the very beginning of the year.

In the pursuance of that service this year, the Y. M. C. A. has placed its emphasis upon the Freshmen. The "Freshmen Hikes," the weekly "Cheer Up" meetings in the Fall Term for the purpose of teaching the new men the college songs, yells, and customs, also the gratifying attendance at the regular Thursday night meetings, evince how well this duty has been performed.

By thus meeting their needs and so practically serving the fellows, the Y. M. C. A. has made Bucknell bigger and more beloved in the hearts of all the students.

The Y. W. C. A.

THE Y. W. C. A. has endeavored this past year to accomplish definite results in making our association an ideal college association. It has endeavored to deepen the spiritual atmosphere of the college and to stand for the development of the ideal college girl.

The enthusiasm which sent eight girls to the Eagles Mere Conference was the first step to bear us beyond our own college campus, and to give us a glimpse of the big world-wide Christian movement. But we did not stop with the Eagles Mere Conference but sent seven girls to represent us in the Student Volunteer Conference at Lancaster. Both of these Conferences have meant much to the Association, not only in mere reports from the delegates, but in the new spirit which these Conferences inspired. We also sent Edna Sayenga to the recent Conference at Lake Forest, Illinois, where votes were cast for the new membership basis of the National Association.

The meetings this year have had a high average attendance, which proves that the subjects and leaders have interested the girls. We have been privileged to have several splendid outside speakers, including Nu. Johnson from Africa, Miss Isabelle Crawford from the Indians, Miss Haggard of the National Student Volunteer Board, and our own Dr. Phillips.

Already this year two of our number have enrolled in the Student Volunteer movement and it is probable that before the year shall close others will offer their service for this cause.

With increasing enthusiasm for great things in the future we turn to a new year in which we will rely upon the guidance of God to direct us in steady progress toward the accomplishment of the aim of our association.

SENIOR COUNCIL

LAGENDA

The Senior Council

THE Senior Council was originally established in response to the need for some power to control the matter of hazing. In the few years that have followed, there has been a gradual widening of its field of operation until now, when, scarcely past its experimental stage, the Council gives promise of being a potent factor for good in the life of Bucknell students. This body is composed of one representative from each fraternity with two members representing the non-fraternity men, and has as its fundamental purpose the impartial solution of all student problems that may arise from time to time. There are many situations that may arise in student life which should be dealt with, not by the faculty, but by the students. Such situations are those which claim the attention of the Senior Council. In short, the function of the Senior Council, in common with all governmental bodies, is to conserve the interests of those who by their own consent are governed by it.

In carrying out this purpose, whatever success the Council may have attained, it has as its keynote the words caution and fairness. No action has been taken without first carefully considering all available facts, or without hearing both sides of the story. As might be expected, the Council has received, among other things, some complaints against individuals, but in every case it has been the aim of the Council to deal with these matters cautiously and impartially. At the same time the decisions of the Council have been enforced with a firmness which is necessary for the maintenance of its prestige. The methods upon which the Council works have not yet been reduced to the system that is desired, but acting upon these principles of caution and impartial justice it is expected that before many years pass the Senior Council will become the most effective form of Student Government that is possible.

Women's Student Government Association of Bucknell University

THE Women's Student Government Association of Bucknell University, established in the spring of 1913, has now passed its probation period and is firmly established as a potent part of the student life. The effort of those who labored to make it a success has been abundantly justified by the progress made toward realizing its aim, a truer college democracy and the stimulation of the individuality of each girl through her sense of personal responsibility. In getting it established there have been many problems to meet, and much new land to clear. Some mistakes were inevitable, but in every crisis, backed by the loyal co-operation of all, it has been able to meet emergencies efficiently. Its effect is discernible in a broader, more democratic and social attitude among the students, and a finer sympathy and truer womanhood.

The Honor System, akin in motive and moral effect, has been adopted. To increase still more the efficiency of Student Government, the point system was instituted. By limiting the number of offices an individual may hold a higher grade performance of each office is secured.

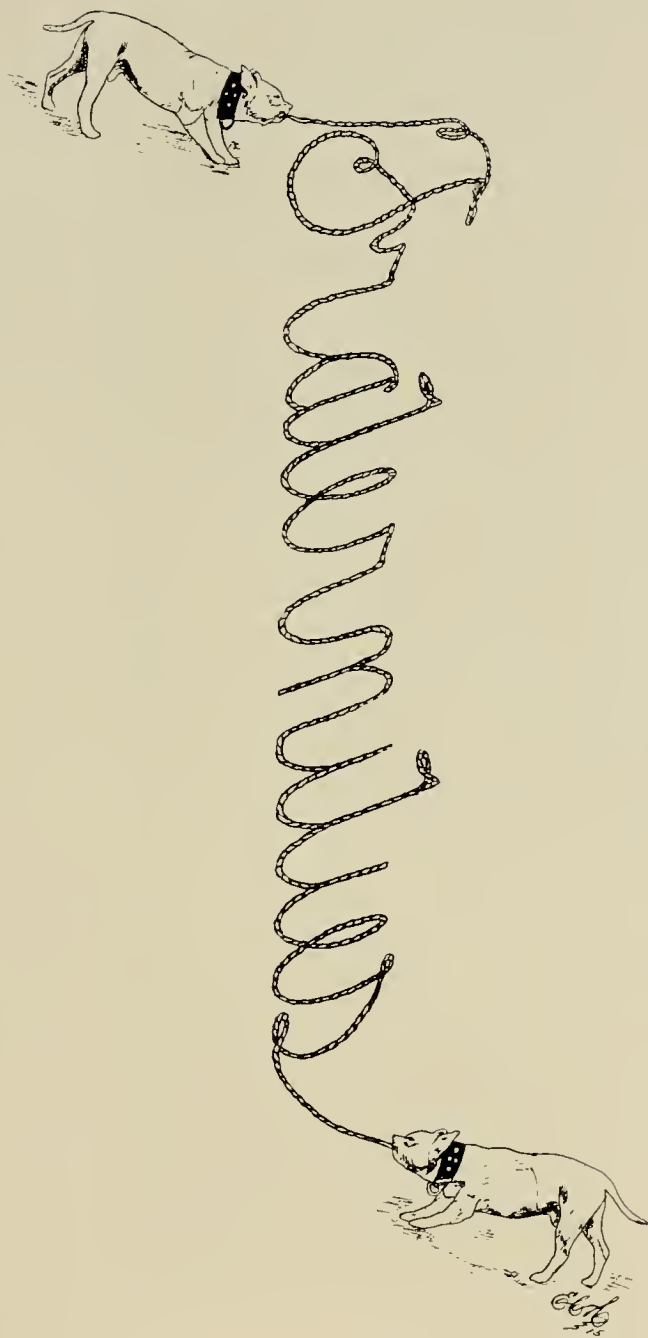

The spirit of Student Government is the spirit of co-operation, the great vital essential in all college life. For this reason to Student Government rightfully belongs the central place in that life, and to each and every individual belongs a keen desire that the standards set so high, early in its career, may ever be maintained.

A Retrospect of Football in 1914

UNDER the new coaches, Cockill, '05, and Jordan, '13, both bright and shining lights in Athletic circles of days gone by at Bucknell, the Orange and Blue passed through a satisfactory season on the gridiron. Misfortune lay in the 'Varsity's wake throughout the whole season on the gridiron. In a methodical order the nucleus of the team of 1913 around which Cockill had hoped to build a stalwart eleven dwindled through the loss of such stars as Sturgis, Cruikshank and Schaffner. With the exit of the first two mentioned, Bucknell's famous forward pass combination, a terror to all opponents, was gone. Schaffner, the husky center of three season's service, whose accurate passing had caused much comment, sustained a broken arm and hope sank to a very low depth. Other disabilities, resulting in temporary lay-offs for several other prominent members of the squad, kept happening and the coaches had excellent opportunities to try out the new men.

In the first clash of the season the 'Varsity swamped the Newberry A. C. team by a score of 72-0 and received very little practice. The game at Princeton in which the team played such remarkable football and held the big Tiger to a measly 10-0 score was a source of much elation to the Bucknell adherents. Swarthmore sunk our ship next with a 9-0 score, which seemed to take the snap out of both 'Varsity and students, as both were confident that the Quaker scalp would be taken. Cornell gave the 'Varsity the worst trimming of years, licking the Orange and Blue by the huge score of 48-0. Susquehanna brought its team up from Selinsgrove and the 'Varsity walked away with them in the next game of the schedule with a 43-0 score. Muhlenburg held the Orange and Blue to a scoreless tie at Allentown, which proved to be another disappointment to all who were rooting for the team, as nothing short of victory was looked for. In the third and last appearance of the team on the campus Albright was done away with by the count of 42-0. With an enthusiastic crowd bellowing encouragement in their ears the team in their next appearance battered through Gettysburg's best bets at Island Park, Harrisburg, and emerged with a 25-0 victory, which put Bucknell in the lead in the list of the Gridiron struggles between the two rivals.

With the defeat at the hands of W. & J.'s champion eleven the season of 1914 came to its close on Thanksgiving Day. With its close such stars as Schaffner, Cruikshank, Gdaniec, Keiser, Topham, Hern, and Aleshouckas, who shone so brilliantly in the firmament of Bucknell's football world passed out with honors that are due only to those who have striven like true warriors for their Alma Mater.

The Orange and Blue on the Diamond in 1914

CAPTAIN and Coach Frank P. Cruikshank, after getting away to a slow start in the early stages of the season, fashioned a speedy, heavy hitting team that rounded out the latter and most important half of the 1914 schedule in such a dashing style that the disheartening New York trip of four successive defeats was entirely overshadowed. The infield enigma which "Cruik" had to face was the hitch which retarded the speed of the team in the first games of the season; but when the peppery captain had solved this riddle by the final switch which placed Storer on third and Worrilow at short, the team was equal to any nine in college ranks. The 'Varsity's ability to hit most anything that was served up, coupled with the masterful flinging of such slabsmen as Liebensberger and Brenner was the combination that gave the 'Varsity its well earned victories over the most highly feared opponents of the Orange and Blue.

When Liebensberger, backed up by the rarest hitting and fielding the 'Varsity showed all season, pitched the Orange and Blue to a 4-1 victory over the Celestials from the University of Hawaii, the team was at the apex of its speed and the convincing way in which this world famed team was beaten testified to the nature of Capt. Cruikshank's team. The season's record was eleven games won and nine lost; which, considered in the light of victories over Pittsburgh, Gettysburg, Ursinus, Albright and Juniata,—teams with enviable records,—can be called successful.

Review of Season in Basketball

THE Orange and Blue Basketball team with better prospects than faced the team last year, finished a season which was not much better than that of 1914. Manager Laidlaw's schedule was an excellent one, the Varsity appearing eight times on the home floor against popular teams. The record for the season which closed with a defeat at the hands of the fast Syracuse quintet, was 5 won and 11 lost.

When abroad the team played its best article of ball, but lacked the endurance of the teams against which it was pitted, and lost out in every foreign encounter with but one exception at Lebanon Valley, when the Annville collegians were beaten 30-28. The team's passing was superb on strange floors but their shooting off color in most every engagement.

Captain Gdaniec's appearance in the season was late, the Mount Carmel warrior being kept from the game on account of an injury received on the gridiron. Those who aided and abetted "Joe" were Murray, Brenner and Bonham as regulars, and Musser and Seeman as first substitutes. Brenner's playing was a marvel this season and the one bright and shining light in the Varsity's play. Garner made strong a heretofore weak spot on Bucknell Varsity teams, that of the foul tossing department. Garner's performance from the foul line, though not consistent, was a vast improvement over the performances of past actors from the 15-foot mark. Bonham, another Freshman, showed excellent form and has the ear-marks of a guard of prominence.

Bucknell again landed the title of "Cellar Champs" in the Central Division of the Basketball League of Pennsylvania, having won one lone game from Susquehanna.

THE track season of Bucknell in 1914 was a very discouraging one after all the splendid efforts which have been expended to put track in its proper place among the major sports at Bucknell. The team was far outclassed in every meet which appeared on the schedule. The failure in track can be attributed to the manner in which the members of the team trained and also to the failure of those possessing ability to come out. The first meet of the year with Lehigh turned away the Bethlehemites victors by an enormous margin. In the Triangular meet, the banner event of the schedule, the Orange and Blue squad furnished a fair third. Navy, Gettysburg and Dickinson in quick succession administered defeats to the 'Varsity in the last three meets of the season.

The number of candidates for the tennis team in the season of 1914 was unusually large, and the 'Varsity was chosen only after some spirited eliminative contests. Elaborate plans for tennis had been made this year, but owing to a long spell of inclement weather only three matches were actually played. In the first match of the season under the most unfavorable weather conditions, the 'Varsity tied the team representing Susquehanna at Selinsgrove, each team winning three matches. Later in the season, Bucknell demonstrated her superiority by winning all six matches from Susquehanna at Lewisburg. In a contest with the Milton Country Club, the 'Varsity was also successful. The enthusiasm which the student body manifested throughout the season is ample proof that tennis, as a sport at Bucknell, is by no means on the decline.

LEGENDA

Love and the Diamond

It was at the Seminary
On a cold and lonely night,
When Stude. Exec. had just begun
To exercise its regal right.
They were seated on the sofa,
With whole worlds of space between,
Right in the parlor opposite
The sacred sanctum of the Dean.

He was a modest baseball hero,
Far and near of great renown,
She, a fan, quite fair and charming,
Dressed in costly silken gown.
But they knew not, when they opened
Up the game, as "Love" they sighed,
That Olive was to be the umpire
Just across the great divide.

He led off first: "I like your form,
With me you've made a heart-base hit;
You've got the speed, you've got the curves,
In fact, you lack no requisite;
Now, if, at bat, my turtle dove,
I swat the pill across the ties,
Won't you advance me in the game
And make the needed sacrifice?"

"Show me your record first, my dear."
The gentle, sweet young dame replied;
"Not your percentage on the field,
But what you hit in Bradstreet's guide;
For frequently these college stars
In major circles fast decline;
But prove to me you've tagged the tin,
And you bet your life I'll sign."

LAGENDA

He started warming up at once,
With victory gleaming in his eye:
He shoved a fast one 'round the waist,
He shot the next one shoulder high;
The third, an ardent one, he put
Right in the groove, between her lips;
A drop he tried, upon his knees,
To catch the coin that Cupid flips.

But here the umpire butted in.
She cried: "Have mercy, Olive, please!
There's nothing wrong, for he is just Merely showing me the squeeze."
Well, Olive gave an irate snort
And said: "Just watch me boost the fun!"
She showed the lad another play,—
One that's called the "hit and run."

She lined one fast to center lot,
She smashed one full upon the nose;
She bunted, fouled, made hits, but not
An error, as her record shows.
The game was getting quite exciting,
For inside dope was being tried;
The loyal fan turned into coacher
As she shouted: "Slide, man, slide!"

But Olive caught the hero stealing
And forced him to the exit door;
Then up to bat again she stepped
To tally up the final score.
She swung like Ty Cobb at his best,
A fearful, soul-inspiring clout,
The son of swat slid down the steps,—
And the umpire yelled: "You're out!"

LEGENDA

Harangue

FROM evidences of the racket in Europe, we might suspect that they are holding a tennis tournament over there.

May this war be termed another Army-Navy game?

The Belgians are suffering terribly. Some towns of over five thousand inhabitants don't even have a motion picture gallery.

Somebody suggested that we make our Bucknell contribution to these sufferers in the form of baking powder. Too much powder has been used over there already.

There's some consolation for the actor who gets rotten apples thrown at him. His attempts are not fruitless.

It is his custom not to let them even think about supper until they have all the night chores done. Then he very generously gives them each a dime to go to bed without supper, and the next morning charges them each a dime for breakfast." But after all, the boys should feel very grateful that they're living—on this side of the Atlantic.

The Rats

Hear the revel of the rats—
Noisy rats!
With what throbbing, quaking hearts we Sem girls set our traps!
In the silence of the night
How we shiver with affright
At the terrifying patter of their feet!
Too much horrified to breathe,
We can only cleave, cleave
To our beds!
By the moonlight through the window we can see them run and play;
With our hearts now madly beating we can watch them on their way
Coming nearer, nearer, nearer,
With their shadows ever clearer,
Till our lives seem never dearer!
We can find no safe retreat,
So we draw the covers close about our heads.
Oh, the rats, rats, rats!
How we long and pray for cats
Close at hand!
How they nibble, chew and scratch!
How we hold our breaths and snatch
For a hat-pin, female weapon, on the stand!
For our ears they full know,
By the squeaking,
And the creaking,
That the rats still come and go;
For our ears distinctly tell,
By the gnawing,
And the clawing,
That the dangers do not quell;
That the Sem is still awakened by the revel of the rats,
Of the rats—
Of the rats, rats, rats, rats,
Rats, rats, rats—
By the patter and the clatter of the rats!

Away somewhar ter school ter larn ter cook an' bake;
But ez fer me, why, I'd a dern sight ruther eat
The grub my wife Marier makes fer me and Tom.

They larn from cookin' books ther latest styles of grub,
And then comes hum ter try the stuff on Ma & Pa:
And then when once they've married some good noble chap,
O, marcy me! experiments galore they tries,
And give him grub that even city guys won't eat.

Why, yisterday, my neighbor Jones, he sez ter me,
"Yer may be glad and thank yer lucky star, frend Cy,
That yer son isn't jined ter one of these here gals
What's been away ter old Bucknell ter larn ter do
The things our good old mothers taught our gals so well."

"Yer bet yer life, frend John," sez I, when he war done,
"I don't send none of my gals thar ter school," I sez;
"The old time cookin's far too good ter be replaced
By this here fancy dope. Why, lands! John, 'tain't no good
Ter keep a man behind a plow fer ten long hours."

O, gals of Old Bucknell! For sake of this, our sex,
Who be a' huntin' wives from out those classic halls,
Experiment in class and lab, and make yer fudge—
But when ye're hooked up ter a man what's got ter work,
Give him the good old stuff that counts fer beef an' brawn.

If this yer does, then may our hungry sons praise God
Fer wives whose larnin' does enrich their common sense!

A Semite's Sad Plight

I came down the hall one morning
As the hill clock struck half past,
And I saw the dining room door close,
Which meant I was doomed to fast.

I could see my breakfast vanish,
As a ship sails out to sea;
And as I turned from the doorway,
I sadly murmured, "Gee!"

For I was faint with hunger,
And life was full of care,
And to do without my breakfast
Seemed more than I could bear.

But since the cost of living
Has soared up to the skies,
The trustees tell Miss Wrigley
She must economize.

And so, now, every morning,
That those who sleep may fast,
The dining room door she closes
When the hill clock strikes half past.

On Slippery Days

When the winter time comes 'round,
With the ice on every pathway,
And the snow heaped in a mound.

Oh! it's there we go a' sprawlin'
And a' tumblin' down like flies,
For you're sure to take a tumble
Tho' you watch with both your eyes.

I fell onct, I don't deny it,
And I felt just awful cheap,
With the people all a' laughin'
At me sittin' in a heap.

But my time to laugh is comin'
One o' these here slippery days
When the folks all think o' lessons
And forget to mind their ways.

Even dignified Professors
Sometimes tumble unaware;
Send their books and hat a' flyin'
And their feet up in the air.

Someone's sure to lose his balance
And I-'spect it will be you,
So, remember, when you're fallin',
Everyone will laugh then, too.

The Old Bird

Speak! speak! Thou winged guest,
Who, with thy rank and loathsome breath,
In exhalations indecorous, crude,
Dost seek thy wretched song to sing.
Thy plumage, too, is foul, and clearly thou
Hast long been dwelling where the filth and mire
Of boggy earth is scattered all around.
Why com'st thou here to sing thy song?

Hark! Hark! Dost thou not hear?
I ask thee what is thine intent,
That thou, in accents so corrupt, so vile,
Dost now defile thy brother's name?
Can such a song as thine, unchaste and lewd,
Bring aught but discord to the ears of men?
Can such degrading language e'er do aught
But mar thy former lofty strains?

"I come, old mates," it answer'd loud,
"To herald in these classic halls
News of that poison in your midst which lurks,
And mingles in this fragrant air.
To right the wrongs, to make the crooked straight,
To purge the air that ye, the pure, may live
Exempt from vice and, joyful, feel
That right will always flourish here.

"I come, I come, to give again
The blessing once received with thanks;
'I knocked, but saved the tree,' men then did say;
My crimson breast was welcome sight;
My piercing cry was music to their ears;
Then was my task to criticize, to warn
Those whom the evil spirit conquered oft:
But now, alas! ye curse me."

LAGENDA

Thou'rt false! A fraud! Thy filthy wing
Is not of him whom then men praised.
No shining feather, pure, serene, and fair,
Doth now thy altered plumage deck.
Thy croaking more befits the vulture cruel;
Thy breath, with stench more foul, methinks, than theirs
Whom now thy nightly pecking doth revile,
Doth sore our nasal sense offend.

Old Bird, begone! Thou art not fit
With us to mix, who, though with faults,
Hold now ourselves above thy croaking flock,
Disdaining to approve thine act;
Among deserving folk of modest pride
Thou hast no place, and so the fire is built
From which the fatal flames ascend on high
To catch thee; so arise, begone!

Too late! Too late! Thy time has come;
Too long, e'en, hast thou tarried here.
Now ends thy song, and we, rejoicing all,
Do watch thee writhe and die.
Warned be they all of thine accursed brood,
Who thus may see thee perish! May ne'er more
The lay of such so rend the peaceful air
Of Old Bucknell!

He Got It

She was a rich young maiden;
He belonged to the Bucknell Band;
Nevertheless, he had the nerve
To sue her for her hand.
He got it—across the mouth.

She makes a wonderful kind of fudge:
He, like a sly old fox,
Just edged around and asked her then
To present him with a box.
He got it—on the ear.

He went into a restaurant
Dead broke, now, by my soul!
And he was hungry, so he thought,
"Unobserved, I'll take a roll."
He got it—into the middle of the street.

WAR BRIEFS

CLASS OF 1915 HONORED.

The class of 1915 is the first one for a number of years to have the distinction of being decorated with the Cross.

KAISER REPULSED.

Though the left wing is still intact, Kaiser has been headed off in all attempts to reach Nancy. It is said that the line of communication is, however, still retained.

TEUTONIC AIR LINE BUSY.

Salsbury was bombarded by a fleet of hydroplanes. This is the beginning of a plan to shell several nuts.

MEXICAN SITUATION.

On Feb. 22 the rebels carried their first uncontested victory. Owing to extra expenditures, financial distress is to be expected. On account of lack of security attempts to borrow have proved futile. Firing across the border and retreats under cover of darkness have ceased.

STRATEGY WORKS.

Toward his German opponent the Earle of Dukingham has taken the decided offensive and the victories gained of late assure him steady advance for at least the next two months. There is a rumor in circulation to the effect that in June he will retire to Jersey to lay plans for a more extensive campaign.

Forecast:

Showers approaching from West Milton

OFFICIAL RUSSIAN REPORT.

In an advance guard skirmish yesterday near Skierniewice Captain Butchinski captured three of the enemy's field pieces, several officers, and a number of privates. Among the Germans taken prisoners were Major Teitelbaum, Captain Heckendorn, Lieutenant Hornberger, Sergeant Liebensberger, and Privates Bauman, Reich, Schoffstall, and Bachman. In the engagement some of our officers were severely wounded. Colonel Dirzulaitis was blown to atoms by a bursting shrapnel. It is doubtful if he will recover. Corporal Mockaitis was shot through the tendon of Mephistopheles. Artificer Kitlowski was thrust through with a sword. In the confusion Musician Zemaitis lost his bugle. Private Mikolajczak was shot in the ammunition wagon. Others were more than half shot.

The rumor that General Grabowski's faithful pony stumbled and fell and scattered him all over the ground is true but no injuries resulted from the fall.

On account of injuries sustained in a recent nocturnal raid of the enemy, Major-General Danowski sent in his resignation and has now retired from the service.

FASHIONS.

Owing to his being sick on the evening of the College Girls' Reception the editor of this department reserves his report until the next issue. He does state, however, that his report will be, like the current styles, a revelation.

SERIOUS WAR AVERTED!

It is a fact known only to class diplomats that a serious war with Muncy High School has recently been averted, due to the prudence and caution of these same diplomats. All loyal supporters of 1916 will rejoice at the prevention of this catastrophe, for present day history is example enough of the carnage and destruction of warfare.

The causes of the hatred and enmity threatening so ominously to break out into hostilities between the aforesaid institution of learning and our own honored class are complications resulting from a trifling incident that took place November last.

It was at the Reading station in Muncy and Miss Dotty Bunnell, a member of our class and a young lady of pugnacious disposition, was the offender. She was returning from a vacation spent in that town and, as its local newspapers maintain, she assaulted and seriously battered a fragile freshman youth of the High School there. The local witnesses of the violent act insist that the delicate youth in knickerbockers quietly and sweetly asked Miss Dotty if she would be kind and condescending enough to inform him of the time of day.

But Miss Dotty, it seems, interpreted his interrogation otherwise. She was under the impression that his manner savored of presumption and forwardness. Accordingly our heroic classmate did not procrastinate as to what action was necessary. She drew back her brawny arm and delivered a terrific blow upon the physical apex of the innocent child that sent him sprawling half the length of the platform. She then boarded the train, leaving him to the jeers of his companions and the ridicule of the bystanders.

Our class weeps at the revelation of such a brutal attack and regrets that we harbor such pugilistic propensities in our midst, for they are liable to involve us in grave difficulties when asserted in such manner.

However, we are truly grateful that suitable amends have been made, due to the wisdom of our officials. They have paid the indemnity demanded and the insurrectionist has "saluted the Flag," so pacific and amical relations are now restored to their previous state.

JOE MALIN RELATES INTRUSION INTO DOMESTIC SCIENCE LECTURE.

It was posted on the bulletin that there would be a meeting of our class in the Laboratory at 4:15 and it was already 4:40, so I came tearing down the Hill in order to arrive before the meeting should be adjourned. Rather confused and ashamed of being so late, I held my head down as I entered and made a bee-line for a back seat. While mounting the series of landings to reach the back row I became aware that a woman's voice was holding forth to the meeting, so I cast a casual glance around and observed that those present were mostly girls. "Geel!" I thought, "the girls are certainly turning out fine to our class meeting; and one of them addressing the meeting, too. This is fine!"

Not until I had become settled in my seat did I take in the real situation. Everybody was gazing at me with a broad grin and I noticed that the only men present besides me were a couple professors; and the lady speaker was muttering something about "the economical wife." "Holy smokes!" I ejaculated to myself, "this is no class meeting—this is a domestic science lecture!"

I never did land until I struck the bottom step. To complete my misery, I stubbed my toe as I was beating it out the door; and those girls set up a howl of laughter. Never again!

SPORTING

IN THE RING.

Heavyweight vs. Middleweight.

New Building was the scene last May of an interesting prize fight between Ella Freed, Bucknell champion heavy-weight, and "Fighting" Kitlowski. The former had weight and endurance while the latter excelled in science and agility. By rounds:

Round 1—Both spar for opening; Freed launches a hefty one on the nose; "Kit" comes back with a left hook to jaw; they clinch as round ends.

Round 2—"Kit" delivers kidney punch; Freed retaliates with cross-counter to ear; time up as Freed floors "Kit" with corkscrew blow.

Round 3—At the start they clinch and fall, Freed uppermost; "Kit," considerably crushed, returns to the combat weak; Freed takes advantage thereof and succeeds in landing a solar plexus; "Kit" sinks to floor; she is still unconscious at the count of ten.

Referee—Evans; seconds—Ott, for "Kit," and Brothers for Freed.

HEIM SCORES KNOCKOUT.

In a long drawn out but exciting bout, Heim, exhibiting himself in fine form, put Cawley out of the running. Kid Cawley got in a punch in the first round and put Heim's eye out, but the old champ caught him off guard at the vital moment and put him to sleep for the full count.

ARCHERY.

Edna Hilty Victor in Contest.

In an Archer-y contest arousing much interest and excitement at the Sem, Edna Hilty easily overcame all contenders by her accurate aim and steady eye at the critical moment. The beaux were equipped with heart strings. It is said that the fair victor had been coached in the art of shooting darts by Cupid.

SOCIAL.

At a meeting of the I. O. D. G. John Jones was regularly initiated to membership.

Just Before the Battle, Mother

Just before the battle, mother,
Just before the fray begins;
With its countless broken noses,
Multitudes of fractured shins,
With its cuts and dislocations,
Busted skulls and mangled hands;
But, oh! you'll not forget me, mother,
As I grovel in the sands.

Just before the battle, mother,
'Tis of you I'm thinking most.
I shall call to mind your warning
When I sink beneath the host;
The tread of one and twenty warriors
May reduce my frame to dust;
But, oh! you'll not forget me, mother,
For the cause is good and just.

Just before the battle, mother,
Glory visions hover o'er.
'Tis the spirit Alma Mater
Makes me thirst for blood and gore;
They may pick me up in fragments,
I may ne'er again see home;
But, oh! you'll not forget me, mother,
If I meet a martyr's doom.

LAGENDA

Just before the battle, mother,
Don't you hear those mighty cheers?
They announce a fearful conflict,—
Scattered brains and bloody smears;
Why you'll not recognize me, mother,
With my face punched black and blue;
But, oh! you'll not forget me, mother,
When I've breathed my last adieu.

Just before the battle, mother,
I can see disaster nigh:
They'll jolt my knee, they'll twist my neck,
Knock out my teeth and crush my thigh;
They'll wipe their cleats upon my liver,
On my eyebrow some may tread;
But, oh! you'll not forget me, mother,
When I'm numbered with the dead.

Just before the battle, mother,
Hark! I hear the whistle call;
Now the big and husky fullback
Lays his toe against the ball.
Farewell, mother! in the scrimmage
They may lay my vitals bare;
But, oh! you'll not forget me, mother,
When I've climbed the Golden Stair.

The New Declaration of Independence

WHEN, in the course of natural events, it becomes necessary for one person to dissolve the sentimental bands which have connected him with another, and to assume, among the fussers, the right and equal station to which the laws of love and of love's god entitle him, a decent respect to the opinions of society requires that we declare the causes which impelled them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident—that every Bucknell man is created with a heart; that he is endowed by his Creator with certain unalienable rights, and that among these are love, courtship and the pursuit of his affinity. That, to secure these rights, lyrics and gentle rhymes are employed by him; that whenever the object of his versicular serenades becomes insensible to the beauty and grandeur and depth of affection contained in his productions, it is his right, from a sense of wounded dignity, to transfer his operations to her who will seem most likely to effect his satisfaction and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that love long established should not be shifted for light and transient causes. But when he has composed tender verses and has searched throughout the realms of poetry for endearing epithets appropriate for application to his beloved and is remunerated by her with lack of appreciation and even open, glaring insult and rebuff, it is his unmistakable duty to cease his advances to her and to provide himself with a new "inspiration" upon whom to lavish his effervescing love. Such has been the experience of a certain Senior at Bucknell and such is the necessity which constrains him to throw off the old and take up the new. The last intolerable, outrageous act committed by her, a present Junior at Bucknell, is but a reflection of repeated injuries and affronts, all having the direct object of making him realize that she considers his poetical efforts the inglorious result of a childish, ethereal fancy. To prove this, let facts be submitted to an unprejudiced student-body.

1. She has refused her assent to propositions most wholesome and necessary for his hungry heart.
2. She has hindered him in his wooing by lack of interest and evident evasion of the question for consideration.
3. She has combined with others in representing him the victim of infatuation, of a silly and transitory whim.
4. She has received his most earnest and sincere avowals of everlasting love with a disdainful smile and an elusive, equivocal: "Oh, you're kiddin'!"
5. She has plundered his purse, ravaged his heart, burned his ardent love epistles, and destroyed his mental equilibrium.

LAGENDA

In every stage of these oppressions he has petitioned for indulgence and reciprocity of his affection in the most humble and beseeching terms; his repeated supplications have been answered only by repeated injury.

Nor has he been wanting in his attentions to his idol. He has taken her to the "movies," to the basketball games, to Huth's, has bought her candy, and has carried her books up and down the Hill. But she has been deaf to his entreaties and invulnerable to the darts of Cupid.

He, therefore, in the name of common sense, does solemnly declare that he is, and ought to be, totally free from the pranks of her vicious nature; that he is absolved from all allegiance to her; and that, appealing to society's sense of justice for the rectitude of his intentions and the justification of his act, he hereby begs us to publish the most flagrant of her offenses, the culmination of her atrocities, the climax where patient sufference breaks into revolt—the following "Ode to a Would-Be Poet," which she sent to him in response to a lyric carefully composed by him and despatched to her with a view to arousing in her a mutual recognition and manifestation of the divine and intense love that inundated his gushing heart:

Ode to a Would-Be Poet

Of all the dire torments that ever were made
To shorten the life course of man
The worst is, by far, the would-be bard
Who cannot, but thinks that he can.
He jingles and scribbles the blessed day long,
But never a thing does he say;
He dabbles in love and the sunset skies,
Or the moon on a midnight bay.
And so, the poor fool! he just wastes precious time.
The bright, golden hours of youth,
In damning his soul with malign, sinful lies,
For he never approaches the truth.
And though we all know his career will be brief,
('Tis a species that cannot last long)
Unspeakable grief! we foresee that there'll be Another to take up his song.
Oh, powers of love, and mercy above,
Defend us poor sinners, we pray,
From rhymers and jinglers and all of their kind;
Oh, take them from us far away!

The Fall Thereof

We were straggling in to chapel,
Blinking, yawning, half asleep;
Some were gathered in the hallway,
Where the "markers" vigil keep.

"Prexy" and a few old faithfuls
Who have class at eight-fifteen
Were just stepping to their places,
Unsuspecting, calm, serene.

Suddenly we all were startled
By a crash that rent the air,
And when the dust began to settle,
The sight we looked upon was rare.

On the floor, amid the wreckage
Of what once had been a chair,
Saw we "Pop" Perrine a' sitting,
Waving hands and feet in air.

Then up jumped Professor Owens,
Felt his arms, his strength to try,
Stooped and picked up Pop a' saying,
"There, there, Enoch, don't ye cry."

Of all things unknown to science,
None in mystery can compare
With the oft repeated question,
"Who was it that 'fixed' Pop's chair?"

The Rising Bell

Through these damp, dark halls of learning,
Through these halls of anxious yearning,
When, with jaded minds and dreary,
We have turned our pillows teary,
And have dropped at last to dreaming;
Then, while stars, still faintly gleaming,
Count the morning hours tolling,
Comes a sudden muffled rolling;
With what fiendish intonation,
And prolonged reverberation,
Comes that brazen jangling dinging,
Comes that cruel and stouless ringing!
Growing loud and ever clearer,
Seeming close and ever nearer,
'Till in fright and frenzied madness,
With o'erflowing cups of sadness,
'Till our senses, half awaking,—
Us all hopes for rest forsaking—
Recognize that awful clanging
As of iron cymbals banging;
With its din our ears appalling,
We at last obey the calling
Of that monster rising bell!

Analysis of an Unknown Author's Play entitled "Piecemeal"

A TRAGEDY IN UNEXPECTED ACTS

By Yours Truly

PERSONAGES

King Chemist, of Bucknell.

Retinue of test tubes, crucibles, flasks, etc.

Count Work Desk.

Lord Nitro-glycerine, in a flask awaiting royal favor.

"Piecemeal" contains the three unities:

Time—To-morrow.

Place—Chemical Laboratory.

Action—Foolish.

ANALYSIS:

I. EXPOSITION: Lord Nitro-glycerine is exposed to a blow from King Chemist and falls reeling into the waiting arms of Count Work Desk.

A. KEYNOTE: The keynote lies in this unworthy treatment of Lord Nitro-glycerine at the hands of King Chemist and in the defiance and resentment of the former as expressed by his statement,

"Even though thou hast ill treated me,
Degraded me thus in this filthy sink,
And rended me unto my very atoms,
Thou canst not keep me down, for I shall rise;
Asunder now, I shall collect my forces,
A thousand fold increased, and take revenge."

B. INITIAL IMPULSE: Accordingly the villainous elements in Lord Nitro-glycerine unite and from wrath and thirst for revenge he explodes.

I. ASCENDING ACTION: The plot thickens; our hero, King Chemist, becomes peeved and goes up into the air; at dizzy heights he soars onward all broken up [hence the title] by the sudden turn of fortune; step by step the ascending action continues; up, up through the ether into the starry regions rushes the hero.

LAGENDA

II. CLIMAX: The King collides with Sol, who, notwithstanding that it is but accidental, starts a heated argument and settles the same with his famous solar plexus punch; accordingly our hero gets the breath knocked out of him; furthermore, he suffers a violent headache therefrom.

C. TRAGIC CRISIS: Being forced out of perihelion, King Chemist seeks escape in a southeastern direction; suddenly Aries, Taurus, and Capricornus loom up and threaten to gore him; he turns back, but Cancer and Scorpio extend their huge claws toward him; on one side Leo roars in fiendish glee; on the other kneels Sagittarius with ominously bended bow; no escape is left to him; Virgo, however, rushes to his aid, conducts him out of the present danger, but then proves unfaithful by starting him on a downward course to inevitable doom.

2. DESCENDING ACTION: In his lofty respirations the King is taken down a peg; and then another; down through space he falls, approaching nearer and nearer the bottom of the yawning abyss below; presently and without warning he strikes the mundane atmosphere with a dull, sickening thud.

D. FINAL SUSPENSE: A knot of matted hair of His (recent) Highness with its accompanying head catches onto the topmost branch of a giant fir in Oregon; there it hangs momentarily in suspense.

III. CATASTROPHE: After a few oscillations of said branch, the royal head glides noiselessly to the mossy bed below; a royal foot lands in the mosquito-infested bogs of New Jersey; a royal biceps becomes entangled in the impenetrable forest of the Amazon; our hero's left eye is found in a mud puddle in the vicinity of his departure; from seventeen adjoining counties is collected the rest of His Majesty, except the heart; and there is a faint suspicion current that the royal heart is broken and seeks a watery grave in the depths of the Indian Ocean.

(Critical Comment: Something must have happened.)

Ethical Import:

Ashes to ashes,
Dust to dust;
If Greek can't kill us,
Chemistry must.

Higher Criticism

LEWISBURG, PA., Feb. 3, 1915.

DEAR MR. EDITOR OF L'AGENDA:

Trusting that my estimable intentions will not be misconstrued, I am taking the liberty to make some valuable criticisms and to render some profitable suggestions concerning the art of composing Senior poems, which seems to be on the decline at Bucknell.

For the past few days I have been carefully examining and judging Senior poems contained in previous L'Agendas and I have discovered an amazing deficiency in their quality, both as to material and poetical expression. Not in a vaunting manner do I make the statement, you understand, but I am regarded a master critic of poetical productions and a genius in the art of verse composition. The principal faults that I have observed in your Senior poems are bombast and an undue proneness to the didactic. They should, it is true, give expression to the moral, to deep enduring thoughts, and to lofty ideals; but not at the sacrifice of the truth. They should adhere to a certain degree of dignity; and a moderate employment of high-sounding phraseology is permissible; but attempts at seriousness on the part of amateur versifiers infallibly results in monotony, harshness, and ambiguity, as those in the past have demonstrated. Their themes are treated with a garrulous discursiveness in subjective generalizations intended to convey moral impressiveness and profundity of philosophical reflections, which is but a conventional sham. They should have striven rather to represent the objective realism which characterizes student activities.

Their style, too, is strained, exhibiting too strict conformity to technique, which hinders graceful and easy expression and destroys that delicate, pleasing rhythm essential to good poetry. Why should they not have suffered their ideas to flow naturally into verse of no definite metre other than that determined by inspiration? Why should they have selected iambic pentameter or some other standard form and then chopped their ideas to pieces and crammed them into place, filling up the fissures with meaningless adverbs?

By chance the present Senior poem came into my hands and that, too, has the same defects,—turgidity, grandiloquence and pedantry immeasurable. Why doesn't the composer of it descend from those ethereal altitudes and indulge in a little human sentiment and deal with a few mundane conditions? Why doesn't this poem depict the true, the natural, the general feeling of the departing Senior and his comprehension of the world beyond?

And, now, to clarify the significance of my statements, I am herewith submitting what I propose a model Senior poem, which I trust will serve as a masterpiece to be imitated by the poets of all future classes.

Respectfully yours,

RAYMOND COOPER, '18.

Worthy readers, we herald the advent of a poetic genius whose omniscience overawes us and whose classic product we publish here as an inspiration to the goddess of poetry herself.

THE EDITOR.

When once our last lessons are over
And the "snits" are about used up;
When the "ponies" are browsing in clover,
And "Prex" gives a week for a cut,—
We shall graduate (faith, we deserve it,
A sheep skin for an A or two);
Then in the cold world some employer
Shall set us to working anew.

He that has "boned" shall be happy:
He shall sit in an office chair
And dictate to sweet, young stenogs
With bushels of rich, golden hair;
He shall have the real peaches to dine with,
The Lucys and Ruths and Elaines;
He shall work but an hour in the morning,
For he is the man with the brains.

And only the "bluffer" shall labor
He shall drudge a whole hour for a dime;
For him a stern boss shall stand over,—
He shall make up his wasted time.
But each in some moment of leisure,
When memory plays for the screen,
Shall recall his fond Alma Mater
And the class that was called Fifteen.

The Rainy Day

The day is cold and dark and dreary,
The Freshie's sore and weak and weary,
His thoughts return to the step in the hall,
And he hears again the Sophomore's call;
For he's sore and weak and weary.

Last night was cold and dark and dreary,
It rained and the Sophs were never weary,
They took him out and bound him fast,
And of his banquet that was the last;
Last night he was blue and dreary.

Be still, sad Fresh, and cease repining,
Tho' you saw not the lights at the feast a-shining,
Thy fate is the common fate of all,
Each year some miss the banquet hall;
Some Freshies are glum and dreary.

Advertisements

A It has been calculated that the students of Bucknell University spend $150,000 each college year in Lewisburg in addition to what is paid to the University for Tuition, Laboratory Fees, etc.

A The greater part of this vast sum eventually finds its way into the hands of the local merchants, from boarding clubs, etc., while the remainder is given directly to these merchants in exchange for room furnishings, delicacies, etc.

A The exceedingly low subscription price of L'AGENDA is to no small extent made possible by the price paid by the best class of local and other merchants in return for advertising space within its pages. Therefore, it is just and proper that these advertisers should be given the best consideration by prospective purchasers and the L'AGENDA Board urges such a course to be followed by all loyal Bucknellians

ANTOZONE—WHAT IT IS

ANTOZONE is a disinfectant, deodorizer and germicide; it is odorless, colorless and non-poisonous.

ANTOZONE is used by and in all the leading hospitals, clubs, theatres, steamship lines, public buildings, colleges, universities, etc., etc. Also is universally endorsed by health boards of all the principal cities. Physicians throughout the country who have seen and used Antozone say that it is the most wonderful disinfectant of the age.

WHAT IT DOES

ANTOZONE does NOT replace foul odors by creating others equally objectionable. It can be used in sick rooms without its presence being known, except by the substitution of pure air for the foul odors that were present before its use.

Also manufacturers of Carbolozone Disinfectant, Pineozone Disinfectant, Soapozone Kleanser, Refineozone Disinfectant, Antozone Exterminine.

GRIT PUBLISHING CO., WILLIAMSPORT, PA.

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age has increased by 1.2 billion, from 1.1 billion in 1980 to 2.3 billion in 1999 (United Nations 2000). The number of children in the world is projected to increase to 3.5 billion by 2020 (United Nations 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to ensure that the needs of children are met in the context of the rapidly changing world of the twenty-first century. The United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (1989) is the most widely ratified international treaty in the world. It sets out the rights of children and the responsibilities of governments to protect and promote these rights. The Convention has been ratified by 112 countries, including all of the member states of the United Nations. The Convention has been a major influence on the development of children's rights legislation in many countries, including the United Kingdom.

The United Kingdom has a long history of concern for the welfare of children. The Children Act 1989 was a landmark piece of legislation that consolidated and reformed the law relating to children. It set out the principles that should guide the actions of those who are involved in the lives of children. The Act has been a major influence on the development of children's services in the United Kingdom. It has led to the establishment of a new system of children's services, which is based on the principle of partnership between the state and the voluntary sector.
